

THE RED BOOK

Celebrating 85 Years of FAWCO

empowering women worldwide since 1931

MISSION STATEMENT

The Federation of American Women's Clubs Overseas is an international network of independent organizations whose mission is:

To serve as a resource and channel of information among its members;

To provide a voice for American women abroad and to support the rights of all Americans worldwide;

To contribute actively to the global community with a specific focus on education, the natural and human environment, multicultural understanding and international good will.

Adopted Athens, 1998; revised Stockholm 2003

FOREWORD

This edition of The Red Book marks FAWCO'S 85th year with a new tagline: Empowering Women Worldwide Since 1931.

It reflects a strengthening resolve to commit FAWCO'S resources to improving the lives of women and girls in education, the environment, health, and human rights. We have called this decade Targeting Women.

As ever, we have tried to be careful editors, wanting to preserve the tones and phrases* of past authors.

They are:

Elizabeth Tiné, 1963

Ruth White and Anna Brady, 1971

Elizabeth Bagney, Pan Hottinger, Shirley Van Ooijen, 1981

Elaine Senigallia, 1991

Elaine Senigallia and Georgia Regnault, 2001

Nancy Thornley and Georgia Regnault, 2006

Nancy Thornley and Georgia Regnault, 2011

Nancy Thornley and Georgia Regnault, 2016

The 75th Anniversary History Book of 2006 was a special hard cover publication; its 244 pages, in black and white and color, were filled with detailed lists, essays and photographs. The 2011 edition completed the decade called The New Century.

Until 1957, presidents were referred to by their married names. In 1977, "hostess" became "host club" and "chairman" became "chair." In 1994 "fund-raising" became "fundraising." In 1997 "Conference" became "Biennial Conference," "Interim Meeting" became "Interim Conference" and "Observer" became "Participant". In 2015 "Interim Conference" again became "Interim Meeting." The Mutual Aid Fund, which was created in 1957 to give money to the Thessaly earthquake, became the FAWCO Disaster Relief Fund. The FAWCO Relief Fund was so-named in 1987; it became the Emergency Relief Fund in 2002, and the Disaster Relief Fund in 2012. Earlier histories used the term, the Federation; later ones referred to FAWCO.*

THE RED BOOK HISTORY

LONDON 1931

The Federation of American Women's Clubs in Europe that came into being in the spring of 1931 evolved later into The Federation of American Women's Clubs Overseas, FAWCO.

The growing threat of another war in Europe was one of the many social and political circumstances that contributed to the Federation's existence. Like all ideas, it started with a dream put into reality through practical application by the right person at the right time. Credit for actual creation of the organization goes to American-born Caroline Curtis Brown who was President of the American Women's Club in London. It was her conviction that enlightened women, working cooperatively throughout the world, could do much to help achieve permanent international peace, and that this was especially true of American women living abroad who had acquired special experience in living in foreign lands among foreign people and foreign customs. Their American clubs provided not only a home away from home, she felt, but also served to promote sympathetic awareness of the needs and problems in countries other than the United States.

An idealist who possessed practical driving energy, Mrs. Curtis Brown had made her own London club outstanding with a membership of some 1500 people, a magnificent clubhouse and a thriving community service program. With equal dedication, she worked to bring the Federation into being.

Early in 1931, supported by her colleagues and encouraged by other American women's club leaders in Europe, especially the Berlin club president, Mrs. Curtis Brown invited some ten of the existing European clubs to send representatives to London to discuss her Federation concept: an association of American women's clubs to work towards international goodwill and the preservation of world peace, to help one another solve problems common to them all, and to aid women whose citizenship rights were being ignored or restricted.

Clubs in Antwerp, Berlin, The Hague, Paris, Vienna and Zurich accepted her invitation with enthusiasm. A preliminary planning conference met in the London clubhouse in May 1931. Out of this meeting, attended also by a number of distinguished foreign guests and well reported by the press, came the determination to establish some form of organization. Berlin was chosen as the site for a working conference dedicated to bringing it into being.

I CONFERENCE BERLIN 1932

Exactly one year later, in May 1932, representatives from the clubs of Antwerp, Berlin, The Hague, London, Paris, Vienna, and Zurich, meeting in Berlin, brought The Federation of American Women's Clubs in Europe into being, electing Mrs. Curtis Brown as its first president and establishing two years as the term for all its officers, with the Headquarters address that of each president. The Federation's Charter specifically stated as its primary objective the furtherance of international peace. It also guaranteed the autonomy of each member club with regard to its internal operations. An annual meeting was established with a different club to act as Conference host each year. In this early period, the Federation was mainly concerned with "big" issues: furtherance of international peace (with the growth of totalitarianism in Europe in the background), the Equal Rights Bill in the United States and citizenship status for U.S. women married to foreigners. The more immediate issues concerned the education of American children in Europe and a scholarship program.

II CONFERENCE VIENNA 1933

Vienna hosted the 1933 Conference during which an ugly demonstration by Hitler's military forces and a demonstration by the Austrian Landwehr created an atmosphere of tension that emphasized the importance of the Conference's themes: disarmament and the need to educate children to think tolerantly and to develop an international outlook.

The American Literary Club of Belgrade joined the Federation during this Conference. With a membership of only 14, it established the inclusion of small clubs that, along with such giants as London (1400 members) and Paris (1300), took part in promoting the Federation's objectives.

III CONFERENCE PARIS 1934

In 1934 representatives of the eight member clubs convened in Paris. Ways to maintain peace again dominated their discussions. It was agreed that, in order to obtain world harmony, the education of peace-loving attitudes in children was essential and required unbiased history books. Birth control was discussed and emphatically advocated.

Conference headquarters was the club's lovely Rue Boissière clubhouse. Louise Connett of Paris was elected as the Federation's second president.

IV CONFERENCE THE HAGUE 1935

This Conference at the Hotel des Indes marked a definite advance in the Federation's activities. Three new members, Denmark, Hamburg and Oslo, had joined, bringing the membership to eleven.

Adherence to the World Court of Justice was strongly urged as a means for strengthening machinery to obtain peace.

Again arms reduction was advocated, and objections were voiced against the then common practice of military training for the young.

The problem of the citizenship status of American women married to foreigners was introduced and its often-ambiguous character emphasized.

The publication by Scribner in 1935 of James Truslow Adams's history for American children, Record of America, was hailed as an achievement as the Federation felt it had played an important part in bringing about "this commendably unbiased version of American history."

1935 saw the birth of the Federation's publication, The Bulletin, a quarterly that immediately met approval for its high literary standards and stimulating content. To finance it, a temporary head tax was introduced during the Conference, as the Federation's dues were not sufficient to cover operating expenses adequately.

As the Conference closed, Mrs. Gasque of London offered to donate $1,000 a year to the Federation's scholarship fund. This was continued for two years only, but made it possible to launch two promising American candidates on their studies in Europe. Between the 1935 and 1936 Conferences the name was changed to the Federation of American Women's Clubs Overseas in order to permit clubs beyond the boundaries of Europe to become members.

V CONFERENCE COPENHAGEN 1936

Hosted by a two-year-old member club at the Phoenix Hotel, this Danish Conference was rated most successful. Credit was attributed in large part to the stimulating presence of the Honorable Ruth Bryan Owen, the American Ambassador to Denmark.

The Equal Rights Bill and the problem of education for American children residing in Europe were the principal topics of discussion.

The Federation elected a member of the London Club, Mrs. James B. Mennell, as president for the ensuing two-year term.

1936 was a bad year for the Federation. The international scene had become extremely somber, precipitating the return of many Americans to the United States. As numbers decreased, so did club memberships. Even the Paris club was forced to close its splendid clubhouse.

VI CONFERENCE ZURICH 1937

The Federation's sixth Conference at the Hotel Baur au Lac in Zurich was marked by the adoption of the acronym FAWCO.

In addition to discussing the dilemma of the stateless woman, resulting sometimes from an American's marriage to a foreign citizen, attention was drawn to FAWCO'S past achievements. President Connett summarized them: the ongoing scholarship program, the Truslow Adams history book, the excellent quarterly Bulletin, and other intangible benefits, particularly warm, broadening friendships crossing national boundaries.

Documentary evidence of these achievements was presented in meticulously compiled scrapbooks, the work of Mrs. Seavern of London. These beautifully bound records of FAWCO's early history are one of the Federation's highly valued assets.

VII CONFERENCE HAMBURG 1938

This was a critical year and The Hague, Paris and Vienna were unable to send delegates. For those who did attend it was a memorable experience, not all of it happy to recall.

German officialdom offered sumptuous entertainment in support of the Hamburg club's efforts. Included were numerous specially arranged outings, theater and opera performances, and excursions to Berlin and Potsdam. The FAWCO delegates found themselves ill at ease despite such lavish hospitality. Militarism was blatantly displayed. "Heil Hitler" greetings and terrifying rumors were rampant. The general conformity in the name of efficiency was oppressive and dispiriting.

The Conference itself had cheering aspects. The scholarship program was continuing to hold its own through generous donations from individual club members. Child-labor regulations, the Equal Rights Bill, and the education of American children abroad were discussed. A suggestion that every FAWCO club hold a yearly Peace Luncheon, perhaps to coincide with November 11 memorial services, was presented.

Mary Volkmann of Zurich, the new president, stimulated the delegates with her acceptance speech that emphasized the social responsibilities of Americans living in foreign lands.

VIII CONFERENCE LONDON 1939

Despite mounting international tensions, FAWCO managed to hold its scheduled conference in the London clubhouse. Ten clubs participated.

A highlight of the Conference was a report about a successful lecture tour throughout the United States by Helen Hiatt, FAWCO's second scholarship candidate. The suggestion that a similar scholarship sometimes be given to a European for study in the United States was not generally supported.

The problem of indigent and helpless Americans stranded abroad was discussed. It was recommended that the American government provide its Consulates with funds for such emergencies.

Stockholm was scheduled to host the FAWCO Conference in 1940 and Oslo in 1941. With the declaration of war, all plans had to be abandoned. (Ed. Note: Oslo was considered too much like Stockholm - as well as far from the rest of Europe - and Mrs. Morgenstjerne, AWC Oslo, suggested on September 15, ten days after war was declared on September 2, 1939, that perhaps Berlin could host the Conference in 1941. There is no reference to the impending war in the correspondence between the officers, except for a remark on September 10 "what a peaceful world we live in!")

THE WAR YEARS 1940-1948

FAWCO President Volkmann left Switzerland for the United States in the summer of 1939, entrusting the Federation's affairs to Vice President Morgenstjerne of Oslo. Current documentary material was sent to Oslo, including, it appears, the detailed minutes of the 1939 London Conference.

At that time no one could have foreseen the Nazi occupation of Norway and, despite efforts since the war, no trace of this FAWCO material has been found. Mrs. Morgenstjerne just managed to escape being deported during the occupation and died of leukemia on December 26, 1946. The great bulk of the FAWCO archives had fortunately been kept in London where, happily, they escaped destruction. What is known of the 1939 Conference was contained in a condensed version of the Conference minutes among the Zurich files, together with the Bulletin report. The Zurich club continued to be active, as Switzerland was not at war, especially in helping the Red Cross and later the International Red Cross in prisoner-of-war work. After 1943, a large number of American flyers landed or parachuted from disabled planes; AWCZ provided kits for them. Some flyers were helped across the border by Americans living in Switzerland.

From 1939 until well after the war's end, FAWCO endured a decade of darkness. The war years passed slowly and fearfully, especially for those forced to remain under Nazi rule. Despite occupation of their countries, the clubs in Copenhagen, The Hague and Oslo managed to maintain a sort of identity. Meetings were held in secret; club moneys were taken out of banks and entrusted to individual members. Club records became a hazard and, for the most part, were destroyed.

Four years after the war ended, Mary Briner of the Zurich club, assisted by Mrs. Blattner, opened correspondence with those FAWCO clubs surviving the war and with the newly established American women's clubs interested in international activities.

THE POSTWAR ERA 1949-1957

Six clubs – Berlin, Brussels, Copenhagen, Oslo, Stockholm and Zurich – were able to attend the first post-war Conference (Antwerp and London could not afford to come). The concerns were the precarious peace and arms limitation. As business came back to Europe, so did the American presence. By 1955 there were 16 FAWCO clubs. They met biennially due to lack of funds, an ongoing concern. It was in this decade that discussions began on voting from overseas, a crusade that was to take over 20 years to achieve.

IX CONFERENCE COPENHAGEN 1949

Copenhagen hosted the first postwar conference at the Codan Hotel in October 1949. Eight clubs accepted membership in FAWCO but only six were able to send delegates: Berlin, Brussels (a newly-organized club), Copenhagen, Oslo, Stockholm, and Zurich; Antwerp and London were unable to do so. What this small group lacked in numbers, however, was more than made up for by abundant vitality.

Both old and new problems were faced: how to prevent another world war; how to maintain the precarious peace. Arms limitation was urged as well as measures to prevent the spread of communism and fascism.

Socialized medicine, recently established in Denmark, and the unfavorable criticism of it from American quarters, was discussed, as well as the problem of double taxation for Americans living abroad.

The Conference recommended study groups on international affairs in individual clubs and the fostering of friendship between FAWCO clubs and other clubs in their host countries.

In 1949, finances were a primary problem. FAWCO's prewar assets, some $460 including scholarship funds, were frozen in Barclay's Bank in London. The Federation's membership dues were minimal at the time with little hope for any substantial increase in the immediate future. As a temporary measure, the voluntary dollar fund was reintroduced whereby individuals could donate to FAWCO. This system was first used in 1936 to implement the scholarship fund.

For the sake of economy, no formal publication for interclub communication was undertaken. Instead, a Round Robin exchange of newsletters between all the FAWCO clubs was instituted until finances would permit something better.

FAWCO conferences were re-scheduled to meet biennially instead of yearly, shortage of funds being the determining reason.

Mary Briner of Zurich was elected president for the two ensuing years. The next conference was scheduled for Stockholm in 1951.

In 1950 Mrs. Briner was urged by the president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in the United States to invite clubs of other nationalities to join FAWCO and make the Federation truly international; the idea was rejected.

X CONFERENCE STOCKHOLM 1951

The Conference took place at the Grand Hotel. The Athens club had joined, bringing the Federation membership up to nine.

The financial situation was given top priority. Barclay's Bank still refused to release the pre-war funds. Again the voluntary dollar fund was suggested, but rejected. Instead, FAWCO dues were raised from $3.00 to $5.00 per club per year (before the war they had been $10). Delegate fees were introduced and fixed at $2.00, the money to go toward the Conference expenses of the host club.

Club problems in general were also discussed at length: money-raising projects, libraries, clubrooms, social programs, children's education and scholarships. Hope was expressed that FAWCO itself might soon be in a financial position to re-institute its scholarship program

As a way of maintaining close contact with clubwomen in the United States, it was recommended that individual clubs take out membership in both the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the National Council of Women of the United States. Since a publication was still not possible, The Federation News Exchange was introduced. It was an improvement on the Round Robin letters in that the material of individual clubs was assembled at a central point and then redistributed.

Inez Hoyer of Oslo was elected president and Brussels chosen to host the 1953 Conference.

XI CONFERENCE BRUSSELS 1953

Despite financial insecurity, FAWCO membership had increased to fifteen when the Conference convened in Brussels at the Hotel Gallia & Britannique. This was a particularly forceful Conference. Great optimism prevailed at the meetings despite the as yet unsolved financial problems. They were given a slight boost by raising membership dues to $10 per club.

The Brussels Club gave an interesting report about its own special fund-raising project. Hints for Living in Brussels, a club-edited booklet, had not only won much praise but also provided a steady source of income for the club.

At this time members voted to re-establish the FAWCO Bulletin on a modest scale. Two issues were to be printed each year. Member clubs were urged to assist in its financing by obtaining advertising for it. It was agreed that FAWCO should work cooperatively with other interested groups to achieve absentee-voting privileges for U.S. citizens residing abroad. As the status of American women married to foreign nationals was still ambiguous in many countries, further study of their problems was urged.

The fact that many FAWCO clubs raised substantial sums each year for scholarship purposes was reported at the Brussels Conference and warmly applauded. Marge Ganseman of Brussels was elected president and Zurich chosen as the site of the 1955 Conference.

XII CONFERENCE ZURICH 1955

Once again delegates met at the Hotel Baur au Lac. The president stressed the widespread dedication of FAWCO clubs to welfare projects: the combined philanthropic contributions exceeded $25,000 yearly.

FAWCO clubs numbered sixteen, with four new non-European clubs: Abqaiq, Beirut, Bombay and Ras Tanura (Saudi Arabia). With a growing membership, keeping in touch and learning from each other became even more important. Mrs. Ganseman urged that FAWCO members regularly exchange their publications and provide the Bulletin with a yearly summary of their activities.

It was reported that Barclay's Bank had finally released the Federation's pre-war funds and that they were deposited in a Zurich bank and earmarked for scholarship aid. This good news was added to when Patricia Moore, Dhahran's representative, announced that her club wished to donate profits from cookbook sales to the FAWCO scholarship fund. The two amounts totaled some $900 that was to be donated to the Carrie Chapman Catt Memorial Fund to be used at the Fund's discretion. Carmela Renner, the African widow of a doctor, was awarded the scholarship money and used it to great advantage for social work in Sierra Leone.

The question of absentee voting in American elections aroused great interest at the Zurich Conference. A special Citizenship Committee was appointed to work on this project and to keep members informed of its progress. It was agreed that FAWCO should undertake a fund-raising venture, a FAWCO cookbook. Recipes were to be provided by members of individual clubs so as to include a great variety of national dishes. Patricia Moore of Dhahran was elected 1955-57 president and Athens chosen as the site of the next Conference.

XIII CONFERENCE ATHENS 1957

At this Conference, held at the Hotel Grand Bretagne and the YWCA, two member clubs - the American Women's Organization of Greece and the Hellenic-American Women's Club - jointly served as hostesses. For the first time an observer (from Madrid) attended a conference, establishing a precedent of inviting observers from non-FAWCO clubs.

It was reported that the sales of the FAWCO International Cookbook were very encouraging.

There was an appeal for help in obtaining advertising for the Bulletin. Delegates decided to enlarge the format to help attract advertisers, stipulating that the deficit incurred not exceed $500.

A Mutual Aid project was put into effective operation when the Conference delegates allocated $200 of Federation funds to be used to aid victims of the calamitous Thessaly earthquake. A number of FAWCO clubs also made donations, bringing the combined contribution to around $900.

Absentee voting in U.S. elections was again on the agenda, as well as the matter of the preservation and storage of the FAWCO archives. Recommendations included bookbinding of conference minutes and a metal locker for safe storage.

Club programs were discussed, also program planning, club publications, and sponsorship of teenage groups.

To clarify the position of the FAWCO representative, delegates urged that she should be a member of the club's executive committee, but not an officer of her club, lest she be faced with conflicting duties.

President Moore reported on her extensive travels during her administration, considering personal contact a means of vitalizing the Federation.

The highlight of the social program was an audience with Queen Frederica of Greece. The Conference elected Gertrude de Gallaix of Paris the new president and chose Paris as the next Conference site.

GROWTH IN STATURE 1959-67

This was a period of looking outward. While avoiding political issues, FAWCO concerned itself with problems of individual, cultural, educational and welfare activities. It became affiliated with international organizations and women's groups. In addition to continued interest in citizenship rights and dual-nationality problems, attention was turned to the changing pattern of family life, the generation gap and intra-club help and cooperation.

A Federation organ, FAWCO Review, was started and The FAWCO Foundation established. Many ideas inspired by one club were picked up by FAWCO as a whole, and then in turn taken up by other clubs. Some of them, such as the adoption of the Peace Through Knowledge plan, the exchange of local bulletins, and the acceptance of Associate Members in clubs, became part of almost every FAWCO club. Members of the various FAWCO clubs who faced a transfer to another city saw their way eased by an introduction through a letter to the new club. New, prestigious and large clubs joined the Federation.

XIV CONFERENCE PARIS 1959

The 14th Conference of the Federation took place at the Grand Hotel in Paris in May. Of the 18 member clubs only 13 were able to send representatives.

Fundraising was discussed at length, since financing the Federation and the publication of the FAWCO Review were difficult. Volume II of the FAWCO International Cookbook was on sale and proving profitable, and a new project proposed by AWC of Denmark was decided on for profit making, a hand-sized reminder book called Jot and Blot.

The Citizenship Committee reported its conviction that the only viable solution to the problem of absentee voting was establishing uniform state voting qualifications. Such uniformity could be brought about only within the United States, and the League of Women Voters was working on this program.

The most important discussions at this Conference concerned scholarship awards. AWG Paris attached great value to scholarships; they were the club's only welfare project and upwards of $3,000 were awarded each year. It was pointed out by one of the speakers, Dr. Dorothy Leet of the American Education Center of Paris, that one approach to choosing scholarship candidates would be through the Fulbright organization, adding that a member of the local club might profitably serve on the Fulbright Committee of her host country.

David Schonbrun, CBS Paris Chief, was among the Conference's memorable speakers. He envisaged a new role for a united Europe of 160 million people as a third major power and peacekeeper in a troubled world. Ruth St. John of The Hague was elected president for the next two years and AWC The Hague offered to host the 1961 Conference.

INTERIM MEETING ROME 1960

Confidence in the Federation's strength led to the introduction of an Interim Meeting, the first yearly get-together since FAWCO's reactivation in 1949. Only the Federation's executive groups were involved in the meeting, which was highly successful. Unfinished Paris business was completed and preparations were made for The Hague Conference.

XV CONFERENCE THE HAGUE 1961

Sixteen member clubs sent their delegates to the May Conference in The Hague at the Kurhaus Hotel.

Alicia Paolozzi of Rome gave an enlightening talk about the People-to-People Program initiated during the Eisenhower administration and strongly supported by President Kennedy. Its purpose was the promotion of good relations between the United States and other nations on a personal, non-governmental exchange level. Mr. Kennedy was quoted as saying, "American women speak for our country more directly and more personally than any other representatives sent abroad by the U.S.A."

At this Conference it was decided that the time had come for FAWCO to broaden its scope by associating with international activities while continuing to serve the more immediate needs of its members. Cooperation with the People-to-People Program, with the Peace Corps and, in particular, with the National Council of Women of the United States, was proposed.

Extending FAWCO's activities had to involve financial outlay. In May 1961 the FAWCO bank balance amounted to nearly $4,000, but income sources were not assured: the Jot and Blot books had not been an outstanding success; the proposed commercial publication of Volume I of the International Cookbook had met with obstacles; and per capita dues had not proved acceptable as yet (12 member clubs opposed this plan). A continuation of voluntary contributions was urged, the means of obtaining funds for them left open.

The Conference voted to publish a brochure explaining the Federation's aims and past achievements in order to help make FAWCO known and to increase its prestige.

Four out of the five postwar presidents of FAWCO were among the delegates who attended The Hague Conference and served as an advisory board. (Ed. Note: during the term of President Elizabeth Tiné, 1961-63, past presidents were designated as Counselors, a title they have retained.)

INTERIM MEETING BRUSSELS 1962

In 1962 the Interim Meeting of FAWCO Officers was held in Brussels. In addition to preparing plans for the 16th Conference, the Interim Meeting concerned itself with implementation of the 1961 Conference recommendations.

It was decided unanimously to seek voluntary contributions as the principal means of resolving the Federation's need for funds. Fifty cents 'per capita' of each club's membership was proposed as the desired goal, with the FAWCO president to be informed yearly of anticipated contributions. It was also voted to continue promoting the International Cookbook and the Jot and Blot memorandum books.

Furthering the 1961 decision that FAWCO join in the larger work of the world, it was voted to affiliate with the National Council of Women of the United States which led to an automatic association with the International Council of Women and the United Nations non-governmental organizations.

XVI CONFERENCE MADRID 1963

The Federation's 16th Conference took place at the Castellana Hilton Hotel in Madrid, with FAWCO in the World Community as its theme. Of the 19 member clubs, 15 sent representatives.

For the benefit of newcomers, President Tiné outlined FAWCO'S basic aim, peace through harmonious relationships with other people. She said, "Peace is to work for, not to fight for." She emphasized the value of the Federation's association with the National Council of Women, especially endorsing its vigilance as regards human rights and the status of women.

Constitutional changes were adopted in 1963. Recommendations included:

- 1) Encouraging associate memberships for non-Americans in FAWCO member clubs.
- 2) Cooperation in established local community service projects rather than always introducing American methods.
- 3) Appointment of a committee to investigate cooperation with international organizations such as UNICEF and the Peace Corps, possibly aided by the FAWCO U.S. Liaison.
- 4) Contributions to local U.S. Consulates to be used on behalf of needy Americans stranded abroad, investigation having shown that no such funds are available.

Alleged injustices inherent in the Nationality Act were discussed. Pursuit of voting rights for overseas Americans was urged and, once again, it was pointed out that individual state qualifications result in many voters being disenfranchised.

The Conference's two major speakers were women and both discussed the present status of women. Matilde Medina, Assistant Director of the Fulbright Committee in Spain, told of revolutionary changes in the status of women in her native Spain; while still primarily homemakers, Spanish women were entering the professions and business in increasing numbers. Katie Louchheim, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State, made a global survey of this century's progress by women towards attaining equal status with men.

Panel discussions were introduced and proved popular. The Conference probed how to strengthen "FAWCO Spirit" within its member clubs, resulting in suggestions that a club's FAWCO representative be a member of her club's executive board; that she serve a two-year term aided by a working committee; that more emphasis be placed on club publication exchanges; that, in addition to the Club's delegates, more members be encouraged to attend the Biennial FAWCO Conferences; that club stationery carry the legend "Affiliated with FAWCO" and that the FAWCO officers visit different clubs between Conferences. Elizabeth Bagney of Madrid commented that the most effective way to stimulate interest in FAWCO was to host a Biennial Conference while President Tiné reported that the Rome club's special FAWCO fund-raising functions had developed an increasing interest in the Federation's objectives and achievements.

On the financial front, FAWCO dues became more realistic: $10 annually for smaller clubs, $20 for the larger ones, but still far below the Federation's needs. Voluntary contributions had been made by only half of the member clubs, but it was decided to continue requesting them rather than introduce an overall fund-raising project again.

The Review Editor, Anna Brady of Rome, resigned, and suggested that the editor should live in the same city as the president. She urged the adoption of a newsletter instead of the present format, which she deemed very expensive and not self-supporting.

Gertrude Kunstenaar of Zurich, an experienced journalist, was appointed editor, and it was decided to continue the Review in its current format.

The FAWCO U.S. Liaison, Alicia Paolozzi, reported on a speech given by Rachel Carson, author of The Silent Spring, at the New York Conference of the National Council of Women, and the Council's recommendation to urge women to take action to check "man's irresponsible use of nature's bounties."

Marcia Hale of Zurich was elected president and London's invitation to hold the 1965 Conference was enthusiastically accepted.

INTERIM MEETING COPENHAGEN 1964

Following the precedent set by the two previous administrations, the Interim Meeting at the Codan Hotel in Copenhagen was attended by both the officers and committee chairs. Plans for the London Conference were finalized and its theme determined, FAWCO'S Inter-Community Climate of Accord.

Finances were discussed again, as well as the possible establishment of a common FAWCO project. Three locally successful, non-money making projects were recommended for consideration: 1) Peace Through Knowledge, conceived and implemented by Madrid AWC; 2) School to School programs presented by Frankfurt; and 3) Educational Rhythmic Program for Handicapped Children, carried out by Zurich. An International Cultural and Services Committee was established to investigate these and other appropriate philanthropic initiatives for FAWCO.

XVII CONFERENCE LONDON 1965

The 17th Conference convened on April 4 in the London clubhouse and the Carlton Tower Hotel. The President, Marcia Hale, emphasizing FAWCO's role as a clearinghouse, advocated the adoption of a common FAWCO enterprise to consolidate the objectives of individual member clubs.

Progress reports were made regarding investigation and action:

1) Dual-Nationality Citizenship status: Gertrude de Gallaix of Paris had collected much valuable information regarding marriages between Americans and nationals of other countries, in preparation for further study of the nationality problems of children of such marriages.

2) Citizenship Rights for overseas Americans: Genevieve Garzero of Rome had conducted an inter-club survey which disclosed a great need for simplified and uniform means of obtaining voting rights. While no obvious progress had been made, Mrs. Garzero reported that some encouragement might be derived from the experience of Washington, D.C. citizens. Their long quest for voting rights had been rewarded in 1964, having, however, required a constitutional amendment. Mrs. Garzero urged all overseas Americans eligible to vote to exercise their right and proposed that FAWCO persist in its efforts to obtain voting rights for all overseas Americans.

3) FAWCO relations with organizations in the United States: Alicia Paolozzi of Rome, FAWCO's U.S. Liaison, reported as the FAWCO delegate to the National Council of Women of the United States and also as delegate of the National Council to the United Nations. She felt that an international undertaking could help attain greater prestige for FAWCO, particularly since 1965, the 20th anniversary of the United Nations, had been proclaimed International Cooperation Year. Mrs. Paolozzi also reported that the possibility of forming a FAWCO foundation to receive tax-exempt donations was under study.

4) As a specific FAWCO project, Marge Ganseman of Brussels recommended the adoption of a philanthropic project that, while benefiting others, would also unite the clubs. The Conference consequently adopted Peace Through Knowledge as the FAWCO project, with each member club left free to determine its own means for implementing it.

What is FAWCO?, a newly printed brochure to publicize FAWCO's purpose and achievements, was presented and a new type of member club introduced: the Association of American Wives of Europeans (AAWE) of Paris. One of its objectives was the recognition of the values of a dual-cultural heritage and multilingualism, and it has been most cooperative with the FAWCO investigation of dual-heritage children, initiated by Gertrude de Gallaix in 1964.

Mary Mag of Rome was elected the Federation president, and Rome was chosen to host the next Conference.

The depleted FAWCO treasury rendered impractical an Interim meeting in 1966, but the presidential newsletters (replacing the Review, found prohibitive in price to publish) served as a direct link between headquarters and the individual members of FAWCO clubs. One newsletter called attention to the courageous stand on civil rights taken by the National Council of Women of the United States. Another reported on President Mag's Far East travels; in her contacts with women's groups she was impressed by the spectacular progress made by women in the Orient in recent years, their entrance into professions and their frequent elevation to high political office.

Administrative Guidelines were introduced to strengthen the administrative structure.

In order to help young people in host countries learn more about America, and for American children abroad to learn more about their host country, the Peace Through Knowledge project (founding American libraries in host-country schools and host-country libraries in American schools abroad) was strongly encouraged during this period.

An important event in Federation history took place in 1967 with the establishment of The FAWCO Foundation. Undaunted by the negative results in obtaining a tax-exempt status for FAWCO as a non-profit organization, President Mag had continued her efforts. At the 1967 Conference she could report a successful solution; a sister organization having for its sole purpose "the raising and distribution of funds for charitable, scientific or educational purposes or for the prevention of cruelty to children." Meeting the legal requirements, The Foundation funds could be disbursed to the Federation or to any of its member clubs for use in qualified projects.

XVIII CONFERENCE ROME 1967

The 18th Conference assembled at the Parco dei Principi Hotel in Rome on February 27, 1967. President Mag reported on The FAWCO Foundation (its board was chosen from among the newly elected Federation officers). She explained that the major task - raising funds - lay ahead and that modest initial contributions amounting to $200 had been received. The Foundation made its first grant to aid the victims of the Lisbon floods.

Genevieve Garzero of Rome, FAWCO'S Citizenship Status chairman, reported that efforts exerted by the League of Americans Residing Abroad (LARA), by the Bipartisan Committees on Absentee Voting in London and Paris and, not least, by FAWCO, were beginning to have a noticeable effect. The complex problem of franchise for Americans abroad was now a frequent subject of debate in Washington. If voting rights could not be extended by the individual States, they would have to be obtained through the Federal Government, a Congressional bill, or a lawsuit ruling by the courts. More progress was to be expected, as the number of those participating actively in their own particular civil-rights campaigns increased. Mrs. Mag urged all Federation clubs, as well as their individual members, to press their Congressmen for help in exercising their voting rights as American citizens residing abroad.

It was suggested that regional divisions of the FAWCO member clubs might result in greater inter-club cooperation and overall unity. A speech by the General Secretary of the National Council of Women in Italy was read, expressing her gratitude to Americans for the help and encouragement received by Italian women in their struggle for improved citizenship status.

A memorable event of this Conference was a special audience with Pope Paul in the Vatican. Pope Paul declared that FAWCO's work in pursuit of international peace and understanding between Americans and host countries was to be greatly praised.

At the close of the Conference, over her protests that a second term was unprecedented and undesirable, Mrs. Mag was re-elected president. Brussels' invitation was accepted for the 1969 Conference.

WIDENING THE SCOPE 1968 - 1973

With the Federation firmly established, and the financial situation somewhat improved by increased club support, attention was given to those issues important in the United States and elsewhere, i.e. youth, education, ecology and emergency relief for natural disasters. Individual membership was offered to a few selected individuals. Recognition was given to the importance of a positive relationship with the host countries in all areas.

No Interim Meeting was held in 1968 due to the continued precarious financial situation. The president maintained contact with members through presidential newsletters that had been published regularly since 1963. During this period the FAWCO Pamphlet Series was introduced. The first issue of FAWCO Today, was written by Joyce Ahrens and Mary Mag in January 1968; it was followed by others written by individuals and edited by the FAWCO editorial staff. Succeeding pamphlets were devoted to Peace Through Knowledge, Bilingualism, Fundraising, Scholarship, the Clubhouse and other subjects.

Most individual States had failed to facilitate voting for overseas Americans (as per a 1968 Congressional investigation). To clarify the issue, Mrs. Robert Rennie of London corresponded with officials in every state to determine what voting facilities currently existed for the U.S. citizen abroad.

It was also during the Interim period that the National Council of Women of the United States invited each member organization to nominate candidates for recognition of work carried out in the field of human rights. In 1967 Gertrude de Gallaix, FAWCO's candidate, was chosen to receive the National Council's "Woman of Conscience" award for her outstanding achievements in Franco-American relations. A member of both AWG and AAWE Paris, Gertrude de Gallaix had dedicated herself over the years to problems pertaining to dual-nationality, bilingualism and the education of young Americans resident abroad.

XIX CONFERENCE BRUSSELS 1969

Opening the 19th Conference at the Hotel Hilton on March 9 in Brussels, Mrs. Mag said in her presidential address "we must face the urgent problems that the United States is facing today." She quoted James Thurber: "Not to look back in anger, nor forward in fear, but around us in awareness." Clubs should, she felt, examine the amount of money spent on assisting others in comparison to the amount of money spent on amusing themselves.

The Conference keynote address by Antonia Chayes, Dean of Jackson College for Women, Tufts University, dealt with "The Rebellion of Youth," and the main panel discussion was devoted to "Bridging the Generation Gap." Delegates heard the views of both students and the older generation.

Following the report of the FAWCO U.S. Liaison Officer, Mrs. Peter van Brunt, on various international conferences, FAWCO voted to join Women United for the United Nations.

A report on The FAWCO Foundation was given by its president, Mrs. William McEwan of London. She stressed its two committees - fundraising and awards - and its essential connections in the States. Three awards had been made to date. A brochure explaining The Foundation as well as the Federation was planned for the immediate future.

Club relationships with host countries were discussed as well as inter-country hospitality. During a visit to the royal palace, Queen Fabiola greeted and conducted the FAWCO group on a tour.

Sonia Minçbère of Paris was elected president and Paris chosen to host the FAWCO Conference in 1971.

INTERIM MEETING PARIS 1970

The Interim Meeting was held in Paris in March. Present were the executive officers and the co-chairmen of the Conference Planning Committee.

The 1971 Conference theme The Role of Women in the World of Tomorrow was chosen. The FAWCO History, a condensed version of events past and recent compiled by Ruth White, FAWCO Archives Chairman, and edited by Anna Brady, Rome, was presented.

Overall FAWCO policy was discussed. President Minçbère recommended that all future administrations make every effort to hold an Interim Meeting.

XX CONFERENCE PARIS 1971

The 20th Conference was held in March co-hosted by AAWE and AWG Paris. Guest speakers covered timely topics such as Problems in the Universities, Ecology and Drugs.

The Peace Through Knowledge program was terminated as a FAWCO project, having performed its role. The possibility of international clubs being accepted as associate member clubs of FAWCO was raised. Further study on the advisability of establishing special membership categories for clubs or individuals presently ineligible for membership was recommended.

The first FAWCO Foundation scholarship was awarded at this time. Elizabeth Sita of AWC Brussels was elected president and Zurich chosen to host the next Conference.

INTERIM MEETING BRUSSELS 1972

At this Interim Meeting in March 1972, the continued interest in allowing international clubs to become associate members of FAWCO was discussed, as was FAWCO policy and the projected changes in dues and contributions.

The FAWCO Board and the co-chairmen of the Conference Planning Committee decided on The Family-Future-Shock - The Emergency Pattern as the Conference theme.

XXI CONFERENCE ZURICH 1973

The Hotel Atlantis of Zurich was the scene of the 21st Conference in March 1973. The Conference theme was developed through panels (educating children abroad, life style in Denmark), speakers (drug production and the role of the United Nations, the feminist issue in the State Department and the role of women in today's world), and discussions.

In view of the growing sentiment to extend FAWCO membership to clubs with less than the present constitutional requirements as to the proportion of Americans to non-Americans, and to a limited numbers of individuals, it was decided that an appropriate constitutional amendment be prepared for the 1975 FAWCO Conference.

Elizabeth Bagney of AWC Madrid was elected president and Copenhagen chosen as the next Conference site.

TURNING ATTENTION TO OURSELVES 1974 – 1981

During this period FAWCO expanded beyond Europe. Regional meetings took on an important role in inter-club relationships.

Whether working on energy conservation, raising children abroad, or ways of obtaining employment, the clubs were finding a new sense of unity. The category of FAWCO Associate Membership was established with the acceptance of clubs with a sizable non-American membership.

The possibility of allowing member clubs with mixed male/female membership was broached for the first time, and although shelved for later consideration, opened the way for a possible future innovation. In the meantime, cooperation with the Federation of International American Clubs (FIAC) was becoming a reality, as well as support of other organizations of Americans abroad.

The two years following the Zurich Conference were devoted to implementing some ideas that were becoming clearer every month, namely that the women belonging to the various FAWCO clubs can consider themselves as members of the 51st state. Committees formed in Zurich worked on such issues as the orientation of the family living overseas, education for women, citizenship rights and, foremost, the ways and means of self-realization as women in light of the coming International Women's Year in 1975.

INTERIM MEETING MADRID 1974

The Interim Meeting in Madrid, held in the AWC clubhouse in March 1974, was open to AWC Madrid members. In addition to Conference planning, the Interim Meeting concerned itself with the progress achieved in various areas and with trying to project the FAWCO image to the local club members.

XXII CONFERENCE COPENHAGEN 1975

The 1975 Conference opened with President Bagney pointing out the rapid changes that were occurring for women in general and American women abroad in particular. She stressed the necessity of concentrating on a deepening awareness of each individual and her ability to exercise her options as a woman and as an American overseas.

Workshops on Women Alone and Members Under 30, and panel discussions on Relating to the Host Country and Women of the 51st State, as well as keynote speeches, committee reports and discussions, related to the Conference theme, The Aware Woman Overseas.

The Foundation awarded three scholarships. A high point of the social program was an audience with Queen Mother Ingrid of Denmark. Associate Member Clubs were invited to join the Federation and, after the constitutional change was approved, AIWA Genoa was the first to do so.

Edith Beyer of Copenhagen was chosen the next FAWCO president and Rome the site of the 23rd Conference.

INTERIM MEETING DUSSELDORF 1976

The two years in between the Conferences were devoted to further investigating the idea of widening the possibilities for FAWCO women.

The Interim Meeting was held in Dusseldorf in 1976. At the meeting, the structure for the Rome Conference was discussed, focusing on the two-faceted interest of member-clubs: the status of FAWCO clubs' members as Americans overseas, and the status of women in general.

XXIII CONFERENCE ROME 1977

The Conference at the Hotel Villa Pamphili was opened by President Beyer and followed by workshops, panels, speeches and discussions. Women's legal status, employment and opportunities were some of the highlights.

For the first time, members of the Federation of International American Clubs (FIAC) were invited guests at a luncheon. Milton Lehr, President, in his speech, urged cooperation between the two organizations. A joint cable was sent to Senator Bartell of Oklahoma urging a one-year delay in the effective date of new tax legislation for overseas Americans.

A special social event was a visit to Donna Vittoria Leone, wife of the Italian President, at the Quirinale Palace.

Shirley van Ooijen of Amsterdam was elected president and London chosen as the site of the next Conference.

INTERIM MEETING AMSTERDAM 1978

The meeting was held at the Sonesta Hotel. The 1977-79 years were devoted to internal changes to make FAWCO more effective organizationally, and to a vigorous pursuit of Conference goals. President van Ooijen encouraged and attended two of the three regional meetings held, and opened the Interim Meeting to the FAWCO representatives; this provided valuable forums of exchange and contact between the local club members and FAWCO officers and chairmen.

This administration gave top priority to citizenship issues, and cooperation with other overseas groups on these issues was energetically pursued. The president attended two annual conventions of the Federation of International American Clubs (FIAC) in Spain and in Portugal, and participated both years on a special FIAC panel. The administration reported success in raising funds for special projects.

XXIV CONFERENCE LONDON 1979

President van Ooijen opened the Conference at the Kensington Close Hotel with an overflow audience. Indeed, it had been necessary to close registration to observers. In addition to the delegates of 22 member clubs (out of 23), four women attended as visitors from non-member clubs. The Conference theme, FAWCO in Action, was in evidence all week. Four Italian clubs presented a panel on Raising Children Abroad and four professional women conducted a panel on Estate Planning. The workshops dealt with: Leadership and Club Administration, Reverse Culture Shock, Cross-cultural Children, College in the USA, and Women and Work.

Mindful of the Equal Opportunities Act, delegates discussed male membership in FAWCO clubs. Headquarters had requested a consensus from the clubs; they reported that several clubs had already accepted men, there had been no wave of male applications, and no club was willing to change its name. In short, there was no urgency to undertake a constitutional change for FAWCO at this point. In the meantime, it was clearly seen that cooperation with men's clubs as well as with all American organizations striving for equal opportunities for Americans abroad was most beneficial.

The Conference voted to affiliate with the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC), headquarters in Washington, DC, as an Associate Member; to change the FAWCO'S affiliation with the National Council of Women (NCW) from an organizational one to an individual membership for the FAWCO President, and to support passage of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

The FAWCO Foundation reported sufficient funds to be able to award three scholarships that year.

The 1979 Resolutions included: giving special attention to overseas children, supporting legislation for equitable treatment of Americans overseas, working for energy conservation, encouraging member clubs to support women living and working overseas, and striving to improve the American image abroad and the overseas-American image in the States.

Agnes Stephenson Coppin of Brussels was elected president and Paris was chosen as the site of the next Conference.

INTERIM MEETING HAMBURG 1980

The Interim Meeting was held at the Atlantic Hotel in Hamburg with 15 clubs represented, giving it the status of a mini-Conference. The question of holding Conferences in resort areas or cities without a FAWCO club was discussed, and those attending were asked to report on possibilities for the next interim.

Plans were made for the 1981 Paris Conference that marks FAWCO's golden anniversary.

XXV CONFERENCE PARIS 1981

The Paris Conference at the Hotel Penta celebrated the 50 years of FAWCO. The theme was Opportunities and Challenges, and the keynote speaker was television news analyst Christine Ockrent who spoke on the subject of career opportunities for women in Europe today. Olivia de Havilland was an honored guest.

President Coppin reported that during the 1979-81 administration prime importance was given to the resolutions adopted at the London Conference. The Raising Children Abroad Committee, which generated sub-committees in many clubs, provided solid information and statistics for them. FAWCO member clubs enthusiastically raised funds and made substantial contributions to The FAWCO Foundation Scholarship Fund, enabling it to offer four awards totaling $8,000 in 1980, and five awards totaling $11,000 in 1981, to children of overseas families for study in the United States.

The Citizenship Committee kept members informed about legislation pending in Congress. Kathy Webster, Brussels, reported that special attention was given to the question of transmission of citizenship to children born abroad of one American parent.

The FAWCO U.S. Liaison emphasized the increased communication with other overseas organizations in order to further its interests in taxation, citizenship and Medicare.

President Coppin participated in a panel at the FIAC Convention in 1979 where representatives of six associations of overseas Americans discussed common interests in the fields of legislation and taxation. The other participants were the Federation of International American Clubs, Association of Americans Resident Overseas, American Citizens Abroad, European and Mediterranean Council of American Chambers of Commerce, and the U.S. and Overseas Tax Fairness Committee. The group sent a letter to President Jimmy Carter addressing the issue of equitable treatment for American citizens abroad.

Groundwork was laid for the incorporation of FAWCO, since it was felt that the organization had grown to the point where the legal status of a corporation was advisable, thus paving the way to become a non-profit organization for tax purposes. At the Conference the delegates voted in favor of incorporation.

Conference workshops dealt with The International Family—Raising Children Abroad, Dual-national Marriage, and Where Are Your Roots? Other workshops were on employing one's talents abroad through continuing education and/or work and becoming acquainted with host country nationals. A panel moderated by Patty DeBono, Brussels, discussed coping with disasters abroad.

A number of tip sheets on energy conservation were circulated to all the clubs. Two new clubs, AWC Dublin and AWL Kuwait, were welcomed. The resolutions adopted at the Conference were:

- 1) To focus on the dissemination of information compiled by FAWCO.
- 2) To promote the well being of the individual and society.
- 3) To continue support of legislation aimed at redressing the inequitable treatment of Americans overseas.
- 4) To continue studies in the field of continuing education and to emphasize a positive image of Americans abroad.

Elaine Senigallia of Rome was elected president and Brussels was chosen as the next Conference site.

EXPANSION AND EVOLUTION 1982-1990

The period 1982 to 1990 was one of development and change. The number of clubs increased from 23 to 44. FAWCO was incorporated and tax-exempt status obtained.

Associate Member Clubs were no longer second-class citizens; an amendment granted all clubs the same vote and the American members of associate clubs were made eligible for elective office in the Federation.

New importance was given to the role of FAWCO Representatives who had first been invited to an Interim Meeting in 1978; they had had a brief rep meeting, for the first time, at the London Conference of 1979. In 1983 there were four scheduled reps' meetings at the Brussels Conference and for the first time one meeting (plus a second by request) of club presidents.

The FAWCO Foundation increased the number of scholarships awarded from three in 1979 to eleven in 1991. The FAWCO Relief Fund (originally called the Disaster Relief Fund) made a number of donations.

INTERIM MEETING LUGANO 1982

The first FAWCO meeting to take place in a resort city without a hostess club was held at the Hotel Commodore in Lugano. Aimee Crane Gloeckner, an individual FAWCO member, set up the meeting with the assistance of Susan Monnier, Basel, and Beverly Weiss, Zurich, and their clubs.

This Interim Meeting was opened to all who wished to attend so that, including officers, committee chairmen, reps, club presidents, counselors and observers, there were a total of 110 participants - the largest Interim Meeting ever held so far. In explaining the reasoning behind this change, President Senigallia pointed out that two years is a long time between meetings, especially with a rapid turnover in club membership, and the FAWCO image inevitably becomes dimmer with the passage of time.

A straw vote was taken on the question of admitting clubs with male members and the consensus was in favor, with a final decision to be taken at the Conference. Arrangements for the first FAWCO tour, to Thailand, were described. The Foundation awarded two scholarships totaling $5,000.

The representatives urged that meetings be scheduled for them at the Conference and, on their recommendation, Second Vice President Muriel Bremner of Dublin was named as their liaison to the Board.

President Senigallia suggested that amendments be proposed at the Conference 1) allowing Associate Clubs the same vote as regular clubs since they pay the same dues but have only one vote, while Regular Clubs have two and, 2) permitting American members of Associate Clubs to be eligible for elective office in FAWCO.

XXVI CONFERENCE BRUSSELS 1983

The Hotel Sheraton in Brussels was the setting for the 26th Conference; the theme of was Communication. The keynote speaker was Jehan Sadat, widow of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Other speakers were Jean Gerard, U.S. Ambassador to UNESCO, and Herman de Croo, Belgian Minister of Communications.

President Senigallia reported that a special effort had been made to get information to the member clubs and through them to the individual members. Four issues of a new publication, The FAWCO Forum, designed as a readable small newspaper, as well as four newsletters, were sent to officers, committee chairmen, counselors, representatives, and for distribution to clubs' executive boards. Letters of welcome, with information on what a rep should know and do, were sent to all new representatives.

Beverly Morisset, Brussels, editor of The Handbook for the American Family Abroad, distributed copies to delegates to take back to their home clubs. The Education Committee on Children Abroad issued a pamphlet with the results of their survey on bilingualism among American children educated abroad, while information compiled by Georgiale Granger, Dusseldorf, on obtaining advanced degrees, and a report on financial aid for students by Lee Iacovoni, Rome, were published in The FAWCO Forum.

A joint letter by President Senigallia and Citizenship Committee Chairman Kathy Webster, Brussels, on the transmission of citizenship to children, was sent to the members of the Cabinet Task Force on Immigration. The Citizenship Committee also distributed a revised and expanded version of the citizenship information outline provided at the Interim Meeting.

The question of admitting new clubs with male members as discussed at the Interim Meeting was considered. It was agreed that member clubs are autonomous and FAWCO cannot dictate internal membership rules.

Two new clubs, AAC Santiago, Chile, the first South American club, and the Association of American Wives and Husbands of Europeans in Cannes, joined FAWCO; two former members, Perth, Australia, and The Hague, rejoined. FAWCO Secretary Marilyn Clarke, Rome, announced that membership now stood at 29 clubs representing 7,000 women in 16 countries.

Emphasizing the new direction in FAWCO policy, there were four scheduled meetings of the FAWCO Reps. For the first time at a FAWCO Conference there were two meetings of club presidents, one scheduled and a second by request.

Gloria Fischel, Amsterdam, announced that the FAWCO tour to Thailand was a great success, thanks to the hospitality of AWC Bangkok. Forty-five members, representing 17 clubs, took part in the tour. A second FAWCO tour was planned to Kenya.

Conference workshops dealt with Facing life Transitions Overseas; Women and Work; How to Design and Conduct a Workshop; Growing Older Overseas; Introduction and orientation for New Members; and Stress Management.

Looking toward the future, a panel on New Directions: Young Women and FAWCO, moderated by Virginia Roth, Rotterdam, explored future relations between member clubs and the Federation, as well as what members want from their clubs and the clubs want from FAWCO during its second half-century. Like all organizations, FAWCO should examine its aims and purposes at regular intervals.

A humorous panel called Making Ends Meet—Italian style, moderated by Carol Bordoni, Genoa, offered outrageous and hilarious suggestions for fundraising.

Five scholarships totaling $10,500 were awarded by The FAWCO Foundation. The Conference resolved:

- 1) To give special attention to improving communication.
- 2) To help the adaptation of women transplanted from one culture to another.
- 3) To give special attention to member club women working or attempting to work.
- 4) To support women in their efforts toward continuing education.
- 5) To continue concern for the education of overseas and dual-national children.
- 6) To reinforce awareness of all legislation, whether from America or a host-country, affecting those living abroad, and to support appropriate U.S. legislation.

Nearly 500 people attended the gala dinner at the Conference where Jehan Sadat spoke on "Peace, Women and Children."

Muriel Bremner of Dublin was elected president and Dusseldorf was chosen as the site of the next Conference as a cooperative effort of AWC Dusseldorf and AWC Oslo.

INTERIM MEETING DUBLIN 1984

The 1984 Interim Meeting was held at the Berkeley Court Hotel in Dublin. There were 21 clubs present, a record for an Interim.

Following a panel on the advantages and disadvantages of large Interim Meetings, as compared to those restricted to officers, chairmen and reps, the interim participants decided overwhelmingly in favor of the extended meetings. A straw vote on proposed single-slate elections instead of the customary double slate was defeated.

Dean Ferrier and Kathy Webster of the Citizenship Committee held a voter registration workshop on how to help voters apply for a federal absentee ballot. A strong message from the membership was sent to Washington endorsing pending anti-handgun legislation.

Four FAWCO Foundation awards were granted, totaling $8,500.

XXVII CONFERENCE DUSSELDORF 1985

The International Woman in a Changing World was the theme of the joint Oslo-Düsseldorf Conference, the first Conference sponsored by two clubs working at a distance in well-planned cooperation. The agenda included a panel discussion on coping with technological, political and social change; among the workshop topics were the multiple roles of women, volunteerism, cultural adaptation, the use of computers and speaking in public.

President Bremner pointed out the three main priorities of the 1983-85 Board:

- 1) To foster strong working relationships between FAWCO headquarters, its administrative branches and the member clubs.
- 2) To respond to the interests and needs of Federation members.
- 3) To focus on FAWCO's role nationally and internationally.

In accomplishing the first objective, the administration extended the responsibilities of the vice-presidents and appointed a liaison officer for the counselors. New emphasis was placed on the role of the club representative, with increased communication between her and headquarters. Club presidents became an active unit in regional meetings as well as at the Conference.

Following the suggestion of the previous administration, an amendment was passed granting Associate Member Clubs the same voting rights as Regular Clubs and enabling American members of Associate Clubs to be eligible for elective office in FAWCO.

In 1984 a Social Security Benefits Overseas pamphlet by Blue Breese, Brussels, was published, and in 1985 a supplement on Social Security Benefits for Self-Employed Women Overseas was added.

A new brochure, designed and written by Jacqueline Isler of Zurich, Public Relations Chairman, was distributed to member clubs, to other American overseas organizations and to various U.S. government departments.

Three new committees were formed: Women and Home, Women and Work and University Liaison for Students

With the approach of the 1984 U.S. national elections, Dean Ferrier and the Citizenship Committee launched the largest voter-registration campaign in the Federation's history. Every member club was provided instructions and guidance in addition to those who had attended the Interim voter-registration workshop. Dean Ferrier announced that the campaign had been highly successful and that an increase in overseas voter registration had been noted.

FAWCO, represented by President Bremner, met with two other non-partisan organizations, FIAC (Federation of International American Clubs) and AARO (Association of Americans Resident Overseas) to form a council (CARO) cooperating on behalf of overseas Americans, with the shared concerns identified as taxation, voter-registration, citizenship rights, Medicare and Social Security.

With the incorporation of FAWCO, negotiations were begun to obtain tax-exempt status.

Three new clubs joined FAWCO: AWC Luxembourg, AWC Surrey and the U.S. Women's Club of Fyn, Denmark. Also attending the Conference were guest observers from Bonn and Bern whose clubs joined FAWCO shortly afterward.

Resolutions and Recommendations adopted were:

- 1) That FAWCO give attention to the international woman in a changing world.
- 2) That FAWCO give special attention to improving communication and cooperation among the member clubs.
- 3) That FAWCO foster international relations, recommending that a disaster relief fund be established for emergency situations, and that an international relations committee be established to work with organizations promoting goals similar to those of FAWCO.
- 4) That FAWCO continue to encourage improved liaison between U.S. citizens abroad and the U.S. government.
- 5) That FAWCO reinforce awareness of all legislation, American and host country, affecting those living abroad, and to support appropriate U.S. legislation.
- 6) That FAWCO encourage awareness of the problems of child pornography and the abuse of women and children.
- 7) That FAWCO continue its concern for the education of American and dual-national children residing overseas.

Virginia Roth, Rotterdam, was elected president and Madrid was chosen as the next Conference site.

INTERIM MEETING CASABLANCA 1986

The first FAWCO meeting outside Europe was held at the Hotel Safir in Casablanca, Morocco. The warm invitation of AWC Casablanca and the prospect of a visit to a country unfamiliar to most members were irresistible and there was a large and enthusiastic attendance. Social events included a reception at the Consul General's home, a tea at the U.S. Ambassador's residence in Rabat, a gala dinner with the members of the host club wearing magnificent caftans, and dinners with Moroccan specialties at members' homes. After the meeting many participants took tours of Morocco arranged by AWC Casablanca.

XXVIII CONFERENCE MADRID 1987

The theme for the Conference, held at the Hotel Melia Castillo, was Reaching Out. A panel discussion entitled FAWCO Is Reaching Out Not To Grab But To Give was led by Carol Bordoni, Genoa. The panelists discussed reaching out to so-called silent club members, to newcomers, students and the host community. The procedure used by the U.S. military to assist new arrivals was also described.

President Roth reported that during this administration six Executive Board meetings were held in addition to those in the framework of the Interim and Conference, the first time any board has been able to spend so much time together as a team.

Reaching out became a reality when, for the first time, the FAWCO Disaster Relief Fund was used to help victims of the earthquake in Mexico. At this Conference it was decided that the first vice-president should be responsible for disbursing the funds and the name should be the FAWCO Relief Fund.

Membership Extension Chairman Elaine Senigallia, Rome, announced that six clubs had joined since the last Conference: Bonn, Bern, Korea, Languedoc-Roussillon, Liberia and Vercelli. She brought up the question of whether FAWCO should limit its membership numerically or geographically, which had been discussed previously at the Interim. The consensus was that there should be no limitations on FAWCO membership, and it was hoped that regional groups might eventually be formed for distant clubs, although at the time there was no region that could logically include even two of the non-European clubs.

In regard to distance and postage costs, a suggestion was made that a new system be set up for the interchange of club bulletins. A survey by Treasurer Georgia Regnault estimated that postage costs to each club for these exchanges came to between $100 and $200 per year. It was recommended that a minimum of four issues per year be sent out. Reports on family safety and the environment, pornography, prostitution and child molestation, were presented by AWC Oslo, with recommendations on how to protect children.

Helen Hoogerduyn, The Hague, announced that the FAWCO Resource Center file was completed, and distributed the Resource Center Index listing the documents. Copies of any of the material could then be ordered at a nominal cost.

A workshop on Crisis of Values in Contemporary Culture was presented by Bishop Javier Martinez Fernandez; other workshops were Witnessing the Birth of Cultural Values in Elementary Schools, Speak Up! How to Speak in Public and At the Crossroads.

Seven FAWCO Foundation awards amounting to $10,000 were granted.

It was resolved that FAWCO:

- 1) Implement strong bonds among member clubs with special emphasis on those outside Europe by establishing a sister-club program.
- 2) Foster the spirit of voluntarism within member clubs.
- 3) Encourage action on the part of member clubs against the threat of terrorism.
- 4) Address itself to the problems of students educated abroad attending universities in the United States.
- 5) Increase efforts to bring pressure to bear on U.S. legislators regarding the needs of the American community abroad.

Georgia Regnault, The Hague, was elected president. It was decided to have the new administration select the site of the next Conference.

INTERIM MEETING LUXEMBOURG 1988

The Hotel Intercontinental in Luxembourg was the site of the 1988 Interim Meeting, the first FAWCO meeting to be held in Luxembourg. Goteborg and Vienna were welcomed as new members and eight FAWCO Foundation awards were granted, totaling $14,000.

XXIX CONFERENCE ZURICH 1989

Changing Profiles was the theme of the Conference held at the Hilton International Hotel in Zurich/Glattbrugg. The theme illustrated the change in the make-up of the member clubs - more internationalism through associate members, the difficulty in recruiting volunteers for club positions, and an increasing number of working women arriving overseas.

Four more clubs were welcomed to FAWCO: AWOG Athens (rejoined), AWC Curaçao, AWC Salzburg and AWC Valencia (Venezuela), as well as the two welcomed at the Interim. FAWCO boasted 42 clubs, at least one on every continent.

President Regnault reported that during her term of office she had met with 12 member clubs. She attended a meeting of CARO (Council of Americans Resident Overseas) and also met with The FAWCO Foundation together with the Executive Board, and with Eleanor Hofmanner, President of The FAWCO Foundation.

These meetings were designed to improve the lines of communication between the two elements of FAWCO.

It was announced that tax-exempt status had been granted after a lengthy application process.

First Vice President Margaret de Maura, Madrid, described the Relief Fund donations to the Lumpa Women's Development Association in Sierra Leone, channeled through WOE (Women Overseas for Equality), an international women's organization based in Brussels.

The revised and expanded Handbook for the American Family Abroad, edited by Joy Staudt, Luxembourg, was distributed. It was agreed that, since it was a very useful guide for new arrivals, it be sold by clubs as a fund-raising project.

University Education in the United States: a College Planning Guide, sponsored by AT&T, was completed by the Education Committee, Petre Kladstrup, AWG Paris, as chair.

The first edition of The FAWCO Fund-raising Book, written by Nancy Thornley, Rome, was presented to each club. It described a variety of FAWCO events as well as the outlay required and profit realized.

The sister-club program was begun, under the chairmanship of Inez Scheller, Copenhagen; 22 clubs were taking part.

Letters were sent as part of a letter-writing campaign in an effort to stop the closing of such important US Consulates as in Antwerp and Genoa.

The Citizenship Committee continued its efforts to reduce the prior residency requirements to two years in order to enable a U.S. citizen parent married to a non-citizen to transmit citizenship to his/her child. Denise Liebowitz, Brussels, reported on FAWCO's efforts to change State Department regulations that did not permit U.S. citizens overseas to hold FSN positions.

A panel on Changing Profiles dealt with associate membership within clubs, voluntarism and FAWCO in the future. Workshops were held on Communicating Across Generations, A Sense of Belonging: How Clubs Can Help, Living with Terrorism, Eating for Health and Partners and Organizations.

The Foundation awarded nine scholarships totaling $18,000. The Resolutions adopted recommended that FAWCO:

- 1) Increase awareness of worldwide issues by establishing an ad-hoc committee on the environment.
- 2) Develop further its global potential by setting up a regional structure to accommodate both present and future member clubs.
- 3) Modernize its communication system by providing Headquarters with paid assistance and by preparing a promotional video on FAWCO.
- 4) Address the concerns of individual members.
- 5) Continue its efforts on behalf of United States citizens abroad.

Kay Miller, Brussels, was elected president, and Vienna was chosen as the site of the next Conference.

INTERIM MEETING BRUSSELS 1990

The 1990 Interim Meeting was held at the SAS Royal Hotel in Brussels.

Membership Co-chairmen Brooke Givot, Dublin, and Ellen Baur, Zurich, announced that the American Women's Club of Nairobi, Kenya, had joined and that AWC Taunus, a former FAWCO member, had rejoined.

Guidelines for Affiliate Membership, available to clubs outside Europe which otherwise qualify for Regular or Associate membership, were presented by Dorothy Childers, AWC Oslo. This was to be a one-time trial membership, limited to two years, with dues equivalent to a single individual membership. FAWCO information would be supplied and members would be welcomed as observers at conferences, but such membership would not include voting rights; the members of Affiliate Clubs would not hold elective office in FAWCO and their children could not apply for FAWCO Foundation scholarships.

Pan Hottinger, Madrid, presented the newly revised Administrative Guidelines including those for Affiliate Membership.

President Miller announced that FAWCO is part of a steering committee planning the July 1990 World Conference of U.S. Citizens, to be sponsored by American Citizens Abroad, The Association of Americans Resident Overseas, Democrats Abroad, Republicans Abroad, The European Council of American Chambers of Commerce and FAWCO.

The Conference Sites Committee was made a standing committee instead of a temporary one meeting only at Conferences. An Environmental Committee was formed under the chairmanship of Maryrose Walsh, Madrid, in accordance with one of the resolutions of the 1989 Conference. Phyllis Michaux, AAWE Paris, suggested that FAWCO might form a committee to help elderly citizens too old or too poor to relocate in the U.S. Andrea Bowman-Moore, also AAWE Paris, offered to write up a proposal for such a committee to be put before the Executive Board.

Arrangements have been made to promote FAWCO by a professionally produced video photographed by Brynn Bruijn, The Hague, to be ready in time for the Vienna Conference.

The 1991 Conference will be at the Hilton Hotel in Vienna, its theme: The Environment -- What on Earth Can We Do?

THE ONLINE WORLD AND ITS REGIONS 1991-2000

The last decade of the 20th century might be termed revolutionary, and not only in regard to technical advances in communication within FAWCO.

Long-standing problems of citizenship, especially of children, were resolved, and new problems tackled. The State Department conceded our right as citizens to hold a job in a United States Embassy or Consulate. A FAWCO committee consulted with the Director of the U.S. Census Bureau to discuss the difficulties of including private Americans living abroad in the next census. The importance of absentee ballots was highlighted by the election in 2001.

Conferences were held outside Europe, two in Africa and one, exceptionally, in the United States, hosted by the FAWCO Alumnae. FAWCO became a non-governmental organization at the United Nations and was granted special consultative status in the Economic and Social Council of the UN. Seven FAWCO delegates attended the UN'S Fourth Conference on Women in Beijing, China.

With more than 70 clubs, new methods were sought for promoting interaction between FAWCO and its members. One answer was regionalization, keyed to geography. Member clubs were divided into 13 regions, each headed by a regional coordinator, the link between the Federation and the individual clubs. Regional meetings became frequent. E-mail was a solution to the problem of high mailing costs and online board meetings saved time and travel expenses.

The Resource Center in The Hague went into honorary retirement. Publishing was deemed to be an “Anybody Can Do It” activity, and circulation among clubs kept members in touch with what the other clubs were doing. The FAWCO website became a virtual clubhouse and its address, <http://www.fawco.org>, was accessible to all members.

XXX CONFERENCE VIENNA 1991

President Kay Miller opened the first session of the 1991 FAWCO Conference at Vienna's Hilton Hotel with an update of the recent decision of the board to continue its support of the women's group in Sierra Leone, Africa. She urged the audience to continue its donations and reminded them that these donations were tax deductible. In regard to finances, President Miller pointed out that the FAWCO operating budget was inadequate and recommended the establishment of a fund-raising entity as a standing FAWCO committee.

A highlight of the Conference was the presentation of the slide-show/audio-visual project created by photographer Brynn Bruijn; she had traveled to FAWCO clubs around the world. President Miller reminded the audience that this PR project was possible thanks to the sponsorship of AT&T. It was greeted with enthusiastic applause.

Eleanor Hofmanner, The FAWCO Foundation President, reported on the decision to help the American Women's League of Kuwait get back on its feet after the Gulf War and be in a position to distribute funds where most needed in that country. Contributions were gratefully accepted.

The Years of FAWCO from 1931 to 1991, a new edition of the FAWCO history by Elaine Senigallia, AWA Rome, was distributed to all Conference participants.

Rebecca Tan, Coordinator of the U.S. Citizens' Concerns Committees, reported on the World Federation of Americans Abroad, of which FAWCO is one of six founding members. The report, including a section on U.S. Laws and Legislation by Kathleen de Carbuccia, AAWE Paris, concerned itself primarily with problems of children's citizenship:

- 1) Children being refused U.S. citizenship because parents do not fulfill the residency requirements;
- 2) Children having different citizenships within one family due to the present laws;
- 3) Children adopted overseas unable to be U.S. citizens without being naturalized in the States.

In addition, the summary included the loss of U.S. nationality, reported by Michael Adler, AAWE Paris; the problem of hiring U.S. residents abroad by American diplomatic services, brought up to date by Denise Liebowitz, formerly AWC Brussels; and voting from overseas by Dean Ferrier, AAWE Paris.

Treasurer Paula Daeppen announced that the board recommended that FAWCO must generate more income in order to serve its growing number of member clubs. The board proposed that, for the first time in ten years, dues should be increased by 25%. It was also recommended that fund-raising be increased and income generated by advertising in the FAWCO newsletter.

An updated FAWCO Resource Manual, termed a substantive organizational tool, was distributed to the reps to take back to their clubs. The 158 pages covered every activity of member clubs.

Ann Day, AWA Vienna, was elected FAWCO president and Casablanca's invitation to hold the next Conference was enthusiastically accepted.

After the last tap of the gavel, a number of Conference participants took advantage of Vienna's location and went on to Budapest - for many, a first visit to Eastern Europe.

INTERIM MEETING GENOA 1992

The FAWCO 1992 Interim coincided with Genoa's celebration of the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America - a special year for Americans in the great navigator's hometown.

The Relief Fund for the Kuwait club was approximately $2500. FAWCO Foundation President Eleanor Hofmanner reported that The Foundation had received a total of $27,404, enabling it to grant an additional award for Students with Special Challenges.

The Citizens' Concerns Committee announced that a State Department Authorization Bill had finally lifted the prohibition on the employment of U.S. citizens in positions in U.S. Embassies and Consulates.

The Employment Committee introduced a new FAWCO publication called American Women and Work Overseas. It was favorably reviewed by the International Labor Organization.

XXXI CONFERENCE CASABLANCA 1993

There were 30 member clubs out of 54 that met at the Sheraton Hotel for the first FAWCO Conference to take place in Africa (an Interim Meeting had been held in Casablanca in 1986). The theme was Women and Family: Adapting to a Changing World.

President Ann Day spoke of the regional meetings during the fall. One was in Hamburg where 39 women from seven clubs met to discuss issues such as marketing your club and activities policies. Another was in Copenhagen where the three FAWCO clubs in Denmark held the first Danish-club workshop and agreed to share activities and information regularly. The third was an Asia-Pacific Conference hosted by AWC Thailand and attended by three FAWCO clubs and three other clubs from the region. Although not a regional, the purpose was the same - to bring together representatives from a specific area to discuss cooperation and exchange ideas.

She also spoke about the lines of communication between The FAWCO Foundation and the Federation, which had become open and beneficial. Regular meetings of both boards were held at the Interim and the Biennial Conferences, and a Foundation representative attended part of the fall Federation Board meeting.

Kathleen de Carbuccia, AAWE Paris, a delegate to the World Federation of Americans Abroad of which FAWCO is a founding member, described WFAA as an umbrella organization, its purpose being to encourage changes in U.S. laws that would be beneficial to the countless (and uncouted) Americans living abroad.

Thanks to the efforts of the U.S. Citizens' Concerns Committee, chaired by Rebecca Tan, AWC Hamburg, Americans abroad could work for U.S. embassies; unfortunately, not all embassies knew about the change in the law.

The new Resource Manual for Clubs, edited by Norma Lehmann-Vogelweid and Eve Higgins Miller, was distributed at the reps' meeting. These books are intended for the use of club boards and members.

FAWCO'S Washington Liaison, Eleanor Fina, gave a special report on her activities, answering the question "What do you do?" She services officer and committee chair requests; she develops Washington contacts and maintains contacts with government offices that have some responsibility for Americans abroad; she keeps up with the personnel changes in those offices; and she reports on developments in the U.S. of interest to our members.

Paula Daeppen, AWC Zurich, announced a complete revision of the Administrative Guidelines by her committee. The new guidelines were printed double-sided on environmentally friendly paper and it was hoped that the changes in this version would be of a lasting nature.

FAWCO Treasurer Vicki de Klerk-Rubin, AWC Amsterdam, reported that each club had received a copy of American Women and Work Overseas. In addition, 237 copies of the book had been sold. She pointed out that the Federation could not continue with deficit spending.

Ten new clubs were welcomed, including FAWCO's first Canadian club, the American Women's Club of Oakville, Ontario, and the first Eastern European club, the International Women's Club of Bratislava.

Lee Iacovoni, AWA Rome, president of The FAWCO Foundation, announced that there were 13 scholarship awards valued at over $90,000 for 1993. Twenty-eight clubs sponsored applicants, a new record.

Barbara Johnson, AWG Paris, was elected FAWCO president and Nairobi was chosen to host the 1995 Conference.

INTERIM MEETING BERN 1994

President Barbara Johnson called the opening session of the Interim Meeting to order at the Bellevue Palace Hotel in Bern, Switzerland on March 18, 1994. In her presidential report, she spoke of FAWCO's role in promoting overseas voter registration and in reforming outmoded rules for transmission of American nationality to children born overseas. FAWCO had recently applied to become a Non-Governmental Organization affiliated with the United Nations.

The President pointed out that FAWCO had been operating under severe budget constraints. Last year the organization had a $10,000 budget deficit, mainly due to two publications. She appealed to the membership to contribute to the continuation of FAWCO projects and explained that the FAWCO Board felt there is a need to rethink the structure of the Federation, stressing that each geographic region should be more closely knit with the sister clubs in the same region.

FAWCO Foundation President Lee Iacovoni pointed out that only 50% of the member clubs participate by making contributions to the awards program, a record that needed improvement in order to be eligible for corporate contributions. The Foundation's aim is to obtain 100% participation by the time of the Nairobi Conference. She also announced an annual award in the name of Gertrude de Gallaix had been established by Gertrude's nieces and nephew; Mary Mag Hasse and AAWE Paris also contributed. In addition, former FAWCO President Ruth St. John, who died in December, left a bequest of $50,000 to The Foundation.

Because of the success of the previous year's impromptu auction in Casablanca where $2,000 was raised, another fundraising auction was held at this Interim Meeting.

XXXII CONFERENCE NAIROBI 1995

The second FAWCO Conference in Africa, following the 1993 Conference in Casablanca, was held at the Safari Park Hotel in Nairobi, Kenya. There were 120 participants representing 31 clubs from 16 countries.

U.S. Ambassador to Kenya Aurelia Brazeal gave a stirring keynote speech. Other talks were on Population Control and Family Planning and Women's Rights in Kenya.

The overriding concern of the board was to make FAWCO better known in the world. Achieving status as a United Nations NGO (non-governmental organization) was an important step in this direction. In the fall the president and first vice president represented FAWCO at a regional NGO conference in Vienna; in the spring AWC Denmark represented FAWCO at the UN Summit on Social Development in Copenhagen in the company of Vice President Gore, French President Mitterand and UN Secretary General Boutros Ghali.

President Johnson also stated that she believed the time had come for FAWCO to decentralize, which could be achieved by regionalizing. To be the FAWCO president with 61 member clubs, she pointed out, puts too much responsibility in the hands of one person.

The name FAWCO Forum was restored to the newsletter and a new Mini-Forum created to provide more frequent communication with member clubs. A meeting was held to discuss what issues FAWCO should present at the Fourth World Conference on Women to be held in Beijing in August 1995. Attendance at this United Nations meeting in China would be a notable first for FAWCO.

Environment Chair Valerie Garforth reported that the goals for the committee set up in 1993 had been reached. These included:

- 1) To work with The FAWCO Foundation to create an environment scholarship under the auspices of Earthwatch.
- 2) To support a home in Kenya for abandoned street girls.
- 3) To prevent rainforest destruction by purchasing one acre of rainforest for each club.
- 4) To plant at least one tree per member over a two-year period.

In 1995, the total of trees planted worldwide by FAWCO clubs and club members was 57,788. The Foundation has worked closely with the Environment Committee and part of the proceeds of the auction at the gala dinner were contributed to the salary of a nurse at the Okoa Dada Home for orphaned and abandoned little street girls in Nairobi. Many of the women attending the conference had brought clothing, books and toys to give the girls at the home.

Citizenship Chair Rebecca Tan reported on the new law, passed in 1994, permitting non-American children of a U.S. parent to apply from overseas for expeditious naturalization. She added that the law had not yet been implemented and suggested that members write to their representatives in Congress.

International Liaison Committee Chair Lucy Laederich reported on the World Federation of Americans Abroad of which FAWCO is a founding member. She pointed out that another founding member, American Citizens Abroad, was also working hard to get overseas Americans included in the 2000 US census.

Shirley van Ooijen, Membership Extension chair, listed the nine new clubs which joined FAWCO since the March 1993 Conference. They were: AWC in the Bahamas, AWA of South Australia (Adelaide), Chilterns AWC, AC of Costa del Sol, AWA Budapest, AWC Berlin, AWC Liechtenstein, and AW of the Eastern Province, Saudi Arabia, AW Berkshire-Surrey.

Rebecca Tan was elected president and the Association of American Women in Ireland was chosen to plan the next Conference in Dublin.

INTERIM MEETING BAD HOMBURG 1996

President Rebecca Tan opened the 1996 Interim Meeting in Bad Homburg, Germany, hosted by AWC of the Taunus. Attending were 230 women from 38 clubs in 20 countries. The theme was Women in the Year 2000 - A Voice To Be Heard. Nadine Strossen, President of the American Civil Liberties Union, delivered the keynote speech on "Current Threats to Civil Liberties and Women of Today."

Among the innovations at this Interim Meeting were the first silent auction, introduced by The Foundation; the FAWCO Fair, consisting of parallel meetings in small groups; one-minute reports by reps instead of the usual three-minute ones; and contributions to The Foundation made at luncheon instead of as part of the general meetings. The FAWCO Foundation gave $25,000 to six student recipients and Jackie Isler, AWC Zurich, was elected its president for 1996-98.

In August 1995, seven FAWCO members - Donna Sebti, AWC Casablanca, Helen Hootsmans, AWC Amsterdam, Leslie Flack, AWC Taunus, Peggy Rigaud, AWC Languedoc-Roussillon, Lois Pot, AWC The Hague, Jeanne Schapp, AWC London, and Rebecca Tan, AWC Hamburg - attended the United Nations Fourth Conference on Women in Beijing, China. An extensive report by all seven women, "Back from Beijing and Beyond," was given at the fall Hague regional meeting attended by over 80 women.

During this period the FAWCO Alumnae Committee chaired by Mona Garcia, AWC Madrid, published its first alumnae newsletter; club presidents were added to the FAWCO mailing list; and the Presidents' Coordinator, Elinor Badanes, created a newsletter for club presidents called Presidential Pipeline. New committees were the Finance Committee, chaired by Dorothy Childers, AWC Oslo, and the Census 2000 Committee chaired by Shirley van Ooijen, AWC Amsterdam.

Besides the meeting in The Hague, regional meetings also took place in Brussels, Ischia (Italy), Montpellier, Florence, East Sussex and Basel. All Board members were on-line and <http://www.fawco.org> was born under the guidance of Sarah Porubcansky, AWA Vienna, and Robin Jack, AWC London.

The 20th anniversary of voting from overseas (1976-1996) was celebrated with an historical overview, published by Kathy Webster, AWC Brussels, of the steps taken by FAWCO leading to this historical event.

Valerie Garforth, AWC Zurich, announced that enough money had been raised through the sale of plastic bowl covers to buy an acre of rainforest in Costa Rica in the FAWCO name. Lee Iacovoni, AWA Rome, outgoing Foundation president, announced awards donations totaling $21,278.

The FAWCO Alumnae Committee introduced a proposal to hold the Interim Meeting in the year 2000 in Washington, D.C. Committee Chair Mona Garcia, AWC Madrid, reported on the first U.S. regional in Lancaster, Pennsylvania, attended by 30 women.

XXXIII CONFERENCE DUBLIN 1997

Peace and Partnership was the theme of the 33rd FAWCO Conference held at the Grand Hotel Malahide outside of Dublin. There were 219 participants representing 47 clubs out of a total membership of 65 clubs in 31 countries, with 15,000 members worldwide.

Among the firsts at this Conference, and a highlight of the occasion, was a speech by Mary Robinson, President of Ireland, the first time a head of state had addressed a FAWCO Conference. Other speakers were Dr. Dominic Murray, Director of the Irish Peace Institute Research Center; Mary Banotti, Member of the European Parliament; and Maeve Binchy, author. Other firsts were the photos of the participants in the Directory and the possibility of paying for the Conference by credit card, something that had long been wished for.

The Foundation presented a History of The FAWCO Foundation, 1967-1995, compiled by Julie van der Wolf, AWC The Hague, as The Foundation celebrated its 30th anniversary. Jean Schapp, AWC London, reported that the Relief and Development Fund gave out money as follows: $2000 to the Miftumukiza Project, tracing families of unaccompanied minors in Tanzanian refugee camps, proposed by AWC Oslo; $1,000 to Amica, helping traumatized refugee women in Tusla, Bosnia, proposed by AWA Vienna; $1,000 to Desa, empowering refugee women in Dubrovnik, Croatia, proposed by AWC London; and $1,000 to Rural Girls' Literacy Classes in Morocco proposed by AWC Casablanca.

The Board of Representatives voted to change the Bylaws in order to call future Conferences the Biennial Conference and future Interim Meetings the Interim Conference. Observers would be called participants, hostess clubs would become host clubs and chair would replace chairman.

Resolutions and Recommendations stressed personal safety, world peace, enhancing the U.S. image abroad and creating long-term FAWCO goals.

Robin Jack, AWC London, presented an audio-visual view of the new FAWCO website. She urged clubs to review the information about their own club and to change any outdated material. Individual clubs were given the opportunity to have their own home page linked to the FAWCO website.

Member clubs were divided into 13 regions, each headed by a regional coordinator. Conference minutes were taken each day by different delegates from several FAWCO clubs and coordinated by Carol Battenfeld, AWC Hamburg.

Ellen Rice, AAW Ireland, was elected president and London was chosen as the site for the next Biennial Conference.

INTERIM CONFERENCE ATHENS 1998

Forty-two clubs were represented at the 1998 Interim Conference (the name changed in 1997 from Interim Meeting). President Ellen Rice introduced the new FAWCO publicity and membership materials incorporating the new logo and colors.

Foundation President Jackie Isler, AWC Zurich, announced that The Foundation had revised its bylaws in regard to the election of officers: the Board of Representatives will vote for the four officers of The Foundation and the remaining four directors will be elected by the outgoing Foundation Board. The silent auction raised almost $9,000, 25% of which goes to AWOG's charity choice, the Aglaia Kyriakou children's cancer hospital.

New Directions Chair Lucy Laederich divided the assembly into six groups, each facilitated by a committee member, to formulate a new mission statement for FAWCO. The proposals were voted upon and the committee was given a mandate to combine the top-ranking statements prior to final publication.

FAWCO Alumnae USA, now in its third year as a FAWCO entity, had approximately 260 members throughout the United States. The group had a tour-planning arm whose tours were open to FAWCO members and spouses everywhere. Alumnae Chair Mona Garcia described the arrangements being made for the FAWCO 2000 Interim Conference, the first time ever within the borders of the U.S.

XXXIV BIENNIAL CONFERENCE LONDON 1999

To celebrate the centenary of the American Women's Club in London, the last FAWCO Conference of the second millennium was held as a cooperative endeavor of four host clubs: the American Women's Club of London, the American Women of Berkshire/Surrey, the American Women of Surrey and the Chilterns American Women's Club.

President Ellen Rice reported that since March 1997 there had been five meetings of the board, two of which were conventional meetings. The other three meetings were held online for the first time in the organization's history. These proved extremely successful, resulting in a considerable saving of time and expense.

President Rice said that a chapter on “Online Meetings” is included in the new edition of the Resource Manual.

Since no organization can remain static and survive, the board considered three major issues during its term:

- 1) The Relief and Development Committee: in 1997 this committee was moved to The Foundation.
- 2) The Resource Center: the Board decided to phase out the Resource Center as a distribution point for FAWCO materials since all clubs now had access to online communication and reports could be easily and inexpensively published and circulated as requested.
- 3) Dues and Income Restructuring: fundraising was still a serious problem as FAWCO’s income was solely dependent on dues from member clubs.

A change in membership dues was proposed by the board to be voted upon at the Biennial Conference. A letter was sent out to all member clubs, seeking a dues increase of approximately 15% in 2000 and another 5% in 2001, the first in eight years. The board also suggested that a discount should be offered to Associate Member Clubs, as approximately 25% of FAWCO's business is a concern of U.S. citizens only, a minority within these clubs.

Membership Extension Committee Chair, Virginia Andersen, announced that three new clubs had joined FAWCO since the Athens Interim Conference: AWC Malmö (Sweden), AW of Sydney (Australia) and the Barcelona Women's Network (Spain). This brought The Federation to a total of 70 clubs.

The New Directions Committee, chaired by Lucy Laederich, made three proposals for the future:

- 1) A “virtual clubhouse” for FAWCO, a new role for the website which was now functioning.
- 2) Regional meetings to be held in the autumn in each of four to six “super-regions.”
- 3) Further use of modern communications.

The FAWCO Foundation made a number of organizational changes during the year, eliminating voting deputies from the board and creating two new fundraising positions. For the first time the four administrative officers were elected directly by the FAWCO Board of Representatives. This entailed writing new Administrative Guidelines. Foundation President Roberta Zöllner, AWC Denmark, also explained some of the recent economies being made by The Foundation such as the elimination of the newsletter, and using electronic mail as much as possible.

Lucy Laederich, AAWE Paris, was elected president and Luxembourg was chosen as the 2001 Biennial Conference site.

INTERIM CONFERENCE WASHINGTON, D.C. 2000

202 delegates and 42 guests attended this FAWCO Conference held for the first time in the United States and titled Coming Home to Be Counted. The delegates represented 20 of the 35 countries in which FAWCO member clubs were present. Three new clubs had joined during the past year: AWC Philippines, AWC Bahamas and AWC Lebanon, bringing the number of member clubs to 73.

The president spoke of the objectives of the board in the past year: further development of the website, changing the headquarters' mailings to bi-monthly letters from the president and twice-yearly mailings of The Forum, and reviving the FAWCO Emergency Relief Fund. Other objectives included augmenting the number of regional meetings as well as scheduling more parallel meetings for reps and presidents at Conferences. President Laederich also represented the Federation at a fact-finding meeting of the C2K committee at the Census Bureau in Washington, D.C.

Census Committee Chair Kay Miller reported that Dr. Kenneth Prewitt, Director of the U.S. Census Bureau, had met with her and the FAWCO Board before the Conference to discuss some of the major difficulties in including private overseas Americans in the Census, and encouraged FAWCO to make proposals as to how it could be done.

AW Surrey, which co-chaired the London Conference in 1999, voted to contribute their profit of approximately $2700 to the Federation. These funds will be used to update and publish a new edition of The Years of FAWCO to coincide with the FAWCO 70th anniversary in 2001. Paula Daeppen, Vice President for Public Relations and Internet Presence, reported that, thanks to The FAWCO Forum and the website, FAWCO possesses two tools not only for increasing communication among member clubs, but also for attracting advertisers.

The board presented the Circle of Honor Award to the following women in recognition of their outstanding achievements: Eleanor Fina who served as Washington Liaison from 1988 to 1998; Kathy Webster for her efforts in voter registration and other citizenship issues; and Caroline Newton for her long service with the FAWCO archives.

FAWCO Foundation President Roberta Zöllner reported that the board hoped eventually to increase Relief and Development grants to the level of education grants. Other goals are to work toward increasing the endowment fund through donations and to cut expenses by using e-mail more frequently for communications. President Zöllner presented the new Foundation logo and the Rep Manual, created by Elinor Badanes.

Lauren Scharps, AWC Taunus, Foundation Chair, Relief and Development, announced that the year's grants totaling $15,000 had been awarded to: Nyapea Hospital, Uganda, $5000; Horizons Ouverts (village schools), Morocco, $3500; Monze Mission Hospital, Zambia, $2500; Tailor Training Project, Burundi & Rwanda, $2500; Nuevo Amanecer, Madrid, $1500.

There were three outstanding speakers at the Conference: Congresswoman Carolyn B. Mahoney; Dr. Carolyn Jefferson-Jenkins, President of the League of Women Voters of the United States; and Harriet Mayor Fulbright, Executive Director of the President's Committee on the Arts and Humanities.

The Washington Interim Conference closed with a tree-planting ceremony with the National Park Service, near the Washington Memorial, celebrating the first FAWCO Conference in the United States.

THE NEW CENTURY

Global concerns were enlarged and expanded. Presidents and committee members regularly traveled to regions outside of Europe; Conferences were in Seoul and Vilnius, Boston and Marrakech.

FAWCO gained recognition from Congress, the State Department, the Government Accounting Office, the Federal Voting Assistance Program, and the United Nations. An Americans Abroad Caucus was created.

Emergency Relief Funds went to Sri Lanka, New Orleans and Haiti. Development Grants addressed longer-term projects while target programs focused on specific issues.

FAUSA became an established FAWCO partner.

Administrative aspects were streamlined and electronic communication intensified.

XXXV BIENNIAL CONFERENCE LUXEMBOURG 2001

The Conference was addressed by Her Royal Highness, the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg, and speakers Claire Brisset, Chairman of the European Network of Ombudspersons for Children, and Marie Holzman, Franco-American champion of human rights/women's rights in China.

The workshops were Moveable Marriages (Robin Pascoe); Leadership Issues in Facing Conflict (Ann Houston Kelley); Taxation and Social Security for the American Expatriate (Stephanie Simonard and Tom Rose, AARO); A Career in Your Suitcase (Joanna Parfitt); Fearless Fundraising (FAWCO Foundation); Emergency Response to Cardiac Crisis (Vicki Arefi, Lynn McCauley); Lessons in Leadership (Marge Wendt).

Circle of Honor Awards went to Michael Adler, AAWE Paris, Citizenship; Valerie Garforth, AWC Brussels, Environment; Elaine Senigallia, AWA Rome, Editor of two FAWCO histories.

The first Foundation Online Auction, to run through May 2001, was launched; 70 Years of FAWCO, 1931--2001, edited by Elaine Senigallia and Georgia Regnault, was presented; The FAWCO Special Project Award for $500 went to AWO Ticino.

Two resolutions were voted on:

1). "The delegates to the 35th Biennial Conference of the Federation of American Women's Clubs Overseas urge the U.S. government to enact legislation that will eliminate all of the current disincentives to voting that overseas citizens encounter, and specifically those presented in FAWCO's electoral reform proposals of February 2001."

2). "The delegates to the 35th Biennial Conference of the Federation of American Women's Clubs Overseas (FAWCO) urge the United States Congress to ratify the International Convention on the Rights of the Child."

The Emergency Relief Fund was revived at the request of AWC Bombay; two donations totaling $3,000 were given for aid following the Gujarat earthquake in India.

The FAWCO website was redesigned by Maureen Kittridge and Emily van Eerten, AWC Amsterdam, with two major financial subsidies from AW Surrey. It featured the work of FAWCO committees and became the web-host for over one quarter of the clubs within two years.

FAWCO joined CONGO, the U.N. Conference of NGOs

Five new clubs joined the Federation, including two from new countries, India and Finland. Membership was 79 clubs in March 2001, the highest ever.

The Census Committee Chair, Nan de Laubadère, AAWE Paris, surveyed FAWCO on "which overseas Americans should be counted in the Decennial Census; and where might they best be found in 'your' country?" President Lucy Laederich attended a conference in Washington, D.C. organized by the U.S. Census Bureau for "international stakeholders" such as FAWCO to discuss possibilities for including overseas Americans in the 2010 Decennial Census.

FAWCO was consulted on language and provisions in the first post-2000 election reform legislation; it urged maximum possible time between the sending out of ballots and Election Day in order to reduce disenfranchisement of overseas Americans. Voting from Overseas Chair Kathy Webster, AWC Brussels, drafted a wish list based on the FAWCO post-election survey that was to become the basis for the first position paper used for Overseas Americans Week in Washington in May 2002.

The first regional meeting held in Asia was organized by Helen Papazian, AWC Bangkok. Present were AWC Bangkok, AWC Perth, AWC Philippines, AWC Seoul and the newest FAWCO club, AWC Bombay, as well as an interested visitor from AWC Hong Kong

INTERIM CONFERENCE FLORENCE 2002

The Conference theme was Building Bridges. Forty-two clubs attended; new clubs were New Delhi, Lausanne and WIN Austria.

President Pam Dalhgren reported on the Emergency Relief Fund activated for the September 11 attack on the United States. The chosen charity was the Families of Freedom Scholarship Fund.

Progress was reviewed on the newly established US Liaison and NGO Director positions:

1) US Liaison Lucy Laederich, appointed in 2001, reported on her two mandates, to work for inclusion in the US census and to work on electoral reform. She unveiled a map showing the population of Americans abroad, country by country. It was voted to send the following statement to Washington.

“The delegates of the 2002 Interim Conference of the Federation of American Women’s Clubs Overseas, Inc., representing some 17,000 members in 35 countries, strongly urge the United States Congress to craft legislation that will: 1) facilitate procedures for voting from overseas; 2) ensure the timely distribution of election materials so that all ballots can be received and counted on time; 3) implement procedures for providing statistics on voting from overseas in order to further refine the process for the 4.1 million civilian United States citizens living and working abroad.”

2) NGO Director Paula Daeppen, AWC Zurich, reported that FAWCO had joined CONGO (Congress of Non-governmental Organizations), and that she would represent FAWCO. A statement to be presented to the 2nd UN World Summit on Aging in Madrid was unanimously approved:

“The Federation of American Women’s Clubs Overseas, Inc, as an organization of over 17,000 members in 35 countries worldwide, supports the UN International Plan of Action on Aging, and looks forward to partnering with other NGO and government organizations. It recognizes, in particular, the special needs of aging women, the largest percentage of the aging population and often those who are primary caregivers despite limited financial resources. Its newly established committee on Women’s Health and Aging will therefore work actively to disseminate information and provide support to its members and others in their host countries around the globe.”

A Bylaw amendment was approved to Article IV - Officers, Section 2 - qualifications, which permitted the elected position of treasurer to be a non-American, as the treasurer is not in line to fill the position of president. The purpose of this amendment was to widen the field of possible candidates and to open a position on the board to non-Americans.

Polli Brunelli, Director of the Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), gave the keynote presentation and she, with Kathy Webster, led a voter assistance-training workshop. Other workshops were: American Studies for Kids; Bridging the Financial Gap; Financial Independence for Women; Confession of an Advertising Woman (How anyone can succeed at selling more advertising and earning more money for her club publication); Educational, Medical, Psychological and Legal Implications Among the Learning Disabled Population; Elder Care from Overseas; Energy Efficiency; FAWCO Global Appeal to International Members; Repatriation – Are You Ready To Go Home again?

The Foundation Officers, 2002-2004, were elected: President Elinor Badanes, AW Surrey; Vice President Mary Rose Stauder, AAW Ireland; Secretary Trudi Visser, AWC Dublin; Treasurer Cynthia Niggli, AWC Zurich. The theme of the friendship quilt was Let the Sun Shine In. Laureen Sharps, AWC Taunus, the Relief and Development Chair, announced that the fund would be renamed the Foundation Development Grants.

XXXVI BIENNIAL CONFERENCE STOCKHOLM 2003

The theme of the 36th Conference was Be Inspired. The 43 clubs present represented 25 of the 33 countries hosting FAWCO clubs.

President Dahgren reported on the first Overseas American Week in Washington in May 2002. She attended with US Liaison Lucy Laederich, American Citizens Abroad (ACA), Association of American Residents Overseas (AARO), and Alliance of American Organizations, Spain and Portugal (ALLAMO). The American Business Council of the Gulf States (ABCGC) joined the coalition for several appointments with key officials. The weeklong door knock included Capitol Hill, the State Department, the White House and the Census Bureau. Due to the success of the venture, it was decided to make it an annual undertaking. The Circle of Honor was presented to Senator John D. Rockefeller and Representative Carolyn Mahoney on behalf of their work in supporting the voting rights of overseas Americans. This was the first time that this award was presented to anyone outside of FAWCO.

In January 2003 a second visit was made to Washington during the Congressional budget appropriations to advocate funds for the Help America Vote Act. A meeting was held with the Director of the Census Bureau. Charles Louis Kincannon.

NGO Director Paula Daeppen represented FAWCO on five UN affiliated committees – CONGO (Committee of Non-Governmental Organizations), the CONGO Committee on the Status of Women, the CONGO Special NGO Committee on Human Rights, the CONGO HIV Committee, and GINA (the Geneva International Network on Ageing, which works closely with the World Health Association). Paula, Third Vice President Arline Coward and Dolores Cuellar, chair of the FAWCO Women's Health and Ageing Committee, attended the UN World Assembly on Ageing in Madrid in 2002. The US delegation was presented with the FAWCO statement on ageing adopted at the Florence Interim Conference, "urging recognition of the special needs of ageing women, the largest percentage of the ageing population, and those who are often the primary caregivers despite limited financial resources."

The president, Sites Committee Chair Ashley O'Reilly, AWC Bern, and First Vice President Charlotte Dewitt, AWC Sweden, initiated a Pro Forma Budget document to be used by clubs interested in hosting FAWCO Conferences.

A Bylaw amendment was approved to change the status of FAWCO Alumnae USA (FAUSA) from an Affiliate Member Club to its own separate category, in line with that of The Foundation; FAUSA would be the alumnae arm of FAWCO, as The Foundation is its philanthropic arm.

Queen Silvia visited the Conference and accepted a donation for her charity. The keynote speaker was Elizabeth Rehn; she had served as Minister of Equality Affairs and Minister of Defense for Finland, UN Under Secretary, and UN Special Rapporteur of the Situation on Human Rights.

The workshops were: Computers & the Internet; Promoting Your Club in a Politically Sensitive Climate; Speaking Globally; Substance Abuse; Americans as Others See Them; Global Climate Change and Its Impact on Markets; Photographic Reflections on Swedish Immigration and North American Indians; Website Development; Health Promotion and Prevention Among the Elderly in Sweden; Rhythm Therapy for Stroke Victims; Fundraising the Gallo Way.

The theme of the Foundation friendship quilt was Oceans Apart, Close as the Heart. The Development Grants were restructured into five categories: Healthy Living, Feed the World, AWC Madrid Effects of Violence, Peace Through Understanding, and Hope Through Education

INTERIM CONFERENCE THE HAGUE 2004

Changing The Flow—Making a Difference was the theme of the Interim hosted by AWC The Hague at the Kurhaus Hotel, with a pre-conference Indonesian rijsttafel at the AWC clubhouse. President Arline Coward, AWC Madrid, opened the meeting by welcoming the delegates of 46 member clubs, 32 club presidents and 10 FAWCO Counselors. A moment of silence was observed in memory of the late Princess Juliana, former Queen of The Netherlands.

A panel discussion, Women, War and Peace, was moderated by Pia Dijkstra, a Dutch journalist as well as Ambassador of the Dutch chapter of Save the Children. The panel consisted of members of the International Criminal Court, the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia, the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons and The Netherlands Institute for Human Rights; they discussed women's roles in war as victims or soldiers, and in peace as peace-builders.

With proceeds from the 2003 Stockholm Conference, the FAWCO Board held a FAWCO Fever Lottery that awarded one full Interim Conference package to AWC Amsterdam, USWC Fyn and AWC Aarhus; underwrote a portion of the conference registration fee for all delegates; and contributed $2,000 to the FAWCO Foundation Development Grants.

As an emblem for FAWCO, the FAWCO PIN was launched.

The Founder's Circle was inaugurated as a salute to Caroline Curtis Brown whose original vision created FAWCO. Contributions and bequests to The Founder's Circle were to be used to help fund FAWCO Committees and Liaisons in their work on traditional FAWCO concerns. A Founder's Circle pin and two portraits of Caroline Curtis Brown were unveiled.

The Conference was declared carbon-neutral when Environment Committee Chair Valerie Garforth, AWC Brussels, calculated travel miles to the Conference and allowed delegates to purchase trees, thus offsetting the negative impact of flight travel on the environment. "Water and Gender," an informative presentation by the International Water and Sanitation Center in The Hague, explained the important relationship between women and water in the developing world.

Delegates attended two official receptions, one hosted by Delft Mayor H. van Oorschot and his wife Anne, FAWCO Rep of AWC The Hague, at the Delft Town Hall. The other was a welcome reception hosted by Ambassador Clifford Sobel and his wife Barbara, Honorary President of AWC The Hague, at the Ambassador's Residence.

Workshops included Virtual Leadership, Fund Raising for a Cause, Substance Abuse, Living Abroad with Children, Care Giving from a Distance, Facing History and Ourselves, How Sustainable is the World of our Grandchildren, and Voting Assistance Training conducted by Polli Brunelli, Director of the Federal Voting Assistance Program, Department of Defense. The former Dutch Minister of Health, Dr. Els Borst, explored the "Truths and Myths about Dutch Laws on Drugs, Prostitution and Euthanasia."

The results of a survey by Citizenship Chair Dorothy Stage, AWC Gothenburg, on Expedient Naturalization to obtain U.S. citizenship for grandchildren or children, were made available.

The delegates unanimously passed a mandate "that The Federation of American Women's Clubs Overseas, Inc, as a non-partisan network with more than 17,000 members in 33 countries, endorses the three sections of the Equal Rights Amendment and urges timely ratification."

The board launched a program called Taking FAWCO To The Clubs in order to establish a closer partnership between FAWCO and its member clubs. Two regional meetings were held, one hosted by AWC Brussels and the second by AWC Gothenburg. The FAWCO president attended AWC Chilterns' Remembrance Day Service at an American cemetery, participated with IWC Casablanca and AIWA Rabat in the first-ever Run/Walk event in Morocco to support breast cancer research, and represented FAWCO at the UN World Urban Forum in Barcelona. The board addressed the changing membership profiles of the clubs and, by working with committee chairs, liaisons, The Foundation and member clubs, confirmed that the FAWCO vision is not only a process, it is a vision in progress.

FAWCO submitted the FAWCO Millennium Forest Project, organized by AIWC Casablanca and supported by member clubs worldwide, to the United Nations publication on successful Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) projects.

FAWCO Foundation President Mary Rose Stauder, AAW Ireland, reported on significant changes during 2003-2004. Acting on a mission statement adopted at the 2003 Annual Special Meeting, Development Grants Chair Elinor Badanes, AW Surrey, oversaw the restructuring of the Development Grants based on categories: the Awards were modified to include specific academic disciplines. The Kids Help project, to mark a special occasion in a child's life, was initiated by Ann DeSimoni, AIWC Genoa. Mary Rose Stauder was elected Foundation President and Pam Perraud, AAW Paris, Vice President, for 2004-2006.

FAUSA President Dale Koepenick reported that FAUSA membership remained steady at 200. FAUSA hosted an annual meeting and several regional meetings throughout the United States, and raised funds for a FAUSA scholarship and other philanthropic efforts. Twenty-two FAUSA members attended the Interim Meeting.

Thames Valley AWC joined FAWCO as the 72nd club.

The president closed the Conference with a message from the Women, War, and Peace panel by stating that “we must believe in our ability to make changes in our lives, not only locally but globally as well,” and that “we must challenge concepts that are taken as normal but we know that are not. We must foster peace.”

Conference Chair Georgia Regnault, FAWCO Rep Anne van Oorschot and AWC The Hague President Celeste Brown passed the FAWCO flag to Sunny Eades, Chair of the 37th Biennial Conference to be hosted by The North American Connection in Birmingham, England.

XXXVII CONFERENCE BIRMINGHAM 2005

The Heart of the Matter and Thinking Outside the Box were the joint themes of the 37th FAWCO Biennial Conference hosted by the North American Connection in Birmingham, “The Heart of England;” 41 clubs and 28 club presidents attended. The president opened the FAWCO Conference by inviting the delegates to re-discover the vision of its founder, Mrs. Caroline Curtis Brown.

Conference innovations included shortening the Biennial by one day; replacing club oral reports with a narrated Power Point presentation by Second Vice President Kathleen Simon, AWC London/NAC, and Presidents’ Liaison Melissa Mash, AW Surrey, titled “Clubs in Action”; and the cabaret-style seating in General Sessions. The Flags of FAWCO, displayed in the General Assembly and representing 74 member clubs, were created by Conference Chair Sunny Eades and the children from the Conference charity, Little Hearts Matter.

A panel discussion on care of the heart featured two cardiologists and the Director of Little Hearts Matter; it was led by Health Issues Chair Dolores Cuellar, AWC Bogotá. Conference speakers included the President of the American Friends of the NHC, Countess of Macclesfield; the Lord Mayor of Birmingham; Veronica Oakeshott from Cicely’s Fund; and Conference Gold Level sponsors. The Rt. Hon. Ann Clwyd MP, Prime Minister Tony Blair’s Special Envoy to Iraq, was the keynote speaker.

Workshops dealt with HIV/AIDS, Dealing with Difficult People, the U.S. Government & Overseas Americans, The Woodland Trust, and Learning Differently. Environment Chair Valerie Garforth, AWC Brussels, sold 168 trees through the Carbon Neutral Conference Campaign; 65 trees were planted in the FAWCO Grove in the Woodland Trust near Birmingham.

For distinguished years of service and dedication to the goals and ideals of FAWCO, The Circle of Honor was presented to NGO Director Paula Daeppen, AWC Zurich; FAWCO Foundation Counselor and Archives Co-Chair Jackie Isler, AWC Zurich; FAWCO Counselor and U.S. Liaison Lucy Laederich, AAWE Paris; FAWCO Counselor Georgia Regnault, AWC The Hague; ESC Chair Susan van Alsenoy, AWC Antwerp; and Foundation Counselor Roberta Zöllner, AWC Denmark.

Two new FAWCO awards were established in 2005. The Caroline Curtis Brown Spirit Award, in appreciation of service exemplifying the spirit, inspiration and dedication of Founder Caroline Curtis Brown, was presented to Stella Fizazi and Donna Sebti, AIWC Casablanca; Rebecca Warnander, AWC Stockholm; and Shawn Watson, AWC Bern. The FAWCO Fellowship Award for outstanding support and partnership in promoting the ideals and goals of The Federation of American Women's Clubs Overseas, Inc., was presented to “the fathers of the Help America Vote Act of 2002,” Senators Christopher Dodd (D-CT) and Mitch McConnell (R-KY), and Congressmen Steny Hoyer (D-MD) and Bob Ney (R-OH); to Polli Brunelli, Director, Federal Voting Assistance Program; and to long-time FAWCO supporter Jamie Watson.

Voting from Overseas Committee Chair Kathy Webster, AWC Brussels, retired from “active duty.” Polli Brunelli, Director FVAP, presented Kathy with letters of recognition and congratulations from New York Senators Hillary Rodham Clinton and Charles Schumer, as well as the Office of the Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld (signed by Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul Wolfowitz); an American flag flown over the Pentagon in her honor; and mementos from the Department of Defense and FVAP.

Dianne Reed, AW of the Eastern Province, spoke of being shot during a terrorist attack in Saudi Arabia and the strength that she gained from the support of her FAWCO family. She congratulated FAWCO for empowering women and developing global partnerships with the member clubs. The board made a contribution in Dianne’s name to the FAWCO Founder’s Circle.

The new FAWCO website was presented by web manager Alice Grevet, AAWE Paris, who acknowledged the contribution of web designer Stephanie Von Ohain, AWC Stockholm. The FAWCO 75th Anniversary History Book project was launched with FAWCO Counselor Georgia Regnault, AWC The Hague, and Nancy Thornley, AWA Rome/FAUSA, as editors.

The delegates unanimously passed two mandates: the first urged FAWCO members to support a U.N. Millennium Development Goal to eradicate malaria by raising $75,000 for the purchase and distribution of mosquito nets; the second advocated the creation of a Congressional caucus in Washington dedicated to active dialogue with the overseas American community, and to explore the possibility of setting up a council of overseas Americans with consultative status to the United States government.

The FAWCO Foundation produced Biennial Conference CDs available for purchase. Foundation Counselor Roberta Zöllner, AWC Denmark, received recognition for organizing the 10th FAWCO Friendship Quilt, How Does Your Garden Grow. Foundation President Mary Rose Stauder, AAW Ireland, reported that member clubs donated $25,000 to The FAWCO Foundation in 2004-2005 and that the Kids Help project contributed funds to the FAWCO Emergency Relief Fund.

The Federation became a visible organization to many member clubs through the board's efforts to Take FAWCO to The Clubs. Six regional meetings, three regional retreats and two Swiss inter-club meetings were held during 2003-2005. The president visited clubs in Australia.

FAWCO continued to assist overseas Americans in voting in Federal elections. It advocated full funding of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 with the inclusion of overseas Americans in the original Senate bill. FAWCO President Arline Coward, U.S. Liaison Lucy Laederich, FAUSA President Dale Koepenick, American Club of Lyon Co-President Eric Way and FAWCO Counselor Pamela Dahlgren attended Overseas Americans Week in Washington, D.C. during 2003-2005.

The FAWCO Emergency Relief Fund raised $48,000 for the Beruwala Village Housing Project, Sri Lanka, submitted by AWG Languedoc-Roussillon, to build a house for the widows and children of fishermen killed in the 2004 tsunami.

An official statement was issued calling upon the U.S. Administration to honor the rights and dignity of women and children by supporting life-saving programs sponsored by the United Nations Population Fund. Letters of condolence were sent to former First Lady Nancy Reagan on the death of President Ronald Reagan and to UN Secretary General Kofi Annan on the death of Sergio Vieira de Mello, UN High Commissioner of Human Rights.

AWC Bogotá and WA Cairo joined FAWCO in 2004-2005, bringing membership to 74 clubs.

Two ad hoc committees were created during the year. The Ad Hoc Committee on Communication addressed communication and the flow of information within FAWCO; the Ad Hoc Committee on the Structure of FAWCO was charged with reviewing the present structure of FAWCO and making recommendations where required.

Emily van Eerten, AWC Amsterdam, was elected president for 2005-2007. The FAWCO 75th Anniversary Interim Conference will be held in Berlin, the site of the first Conference hosted by AWC Berlin. The American Club of Lyon will host the 38th Biennial Conference in Lyon, France.

INTERIM CONFERENCE BERLIN 2006

As the first FAWCO Conference was held in Berlin in May 1932, returning to that city in 2006 seemed especially appropriate for a 75th anniversary year. Hosted by AWC Berlin, the theme was Tearing Down Walls; 41 member clubs attended.

FAWCO clubs responded to the mandate of the Birmingham Conference to eradicate malaria by raising enough money to buy one insecticide-treated bed net per member club of FAWCO, or $75,000, for its 75th birthday. Led by NGO Director Paula Daeppen, AWC Zurich, small clubs and large joined in with raffles, auctions and swim events. In honor of the FAWCO commitment, Dr. Hans Herron, President of the Millennium Institute and BioVision, a Swiss foundation, gave the keynote address. $100,000 was raised in the year leading up to the Conference. $35,000 of this sum went to the UK-based World Swim Against Malaria which purchased and distributed 7,000 nets on FAWCO's behalf via several programs. The remainder of the money was pledged directly to BioVision in support of its programs in Malindi and Nyabondo, Kenya. FAWCO renewed its commitment to these projects as part of a new Global Concerns Fund for 2006-7.

Other speakers at the Conference included a member of the German Parliament, Marcus Loning; Sandy Weiner, Personality Profiles and Group Dynamics; Kirsten Dierolf, Ways to Develop and Sustain a Voluntary Organization; motivational speaker Carlona Stone; Polli Brunelli, Voter Assistance Training; Peter Garforth, Sustainability and New Urbanism; workshops on international education and mobile families; The Expatriate and the IRS; Social Security for Expats; Domestic Violence Overseas; Alcohol Abuse and Intervention; Col. (Ret.) Robin Greenham, The New Berlin; Birgit Ehlers, the Conference charity Ronald McDonald Haus.

A birthday cake was presented and wishes came from American Citizens Abroad and the Association of American Residents Overseas. Nancy Thornley, AWA Rome/FAUSA, and Georgia Regnault, AWC The Hague/FAUSA, as editors, presented the 75th Anniversary edition of the FAWCO History Book. This publication, affectionately known as The Red Book, was warmly received and Nancy Thornley was awarded the Circle of Honor. Laura Bush sent a letter of greetings and congratulations on the 75th anniversary.

The Emergency Relief Fund was activated following the Asian tsunami in December 2004. $48,000 was sent to the Beruwala Village Humanitarian Association in April 2005 for a project, proposed by Genette Eysselink and AWG Languedoc-Roussillon, to construct a building for widows and children of lost fishermen, to be known as the FAWCO House. The ERF was again activated following Hurricane Katrina in New Orleans.

Clubs were asked to prepare annual reports that annotated their charitable giving, both in time and money. This information, along with reports of liaisons, global committees, the Foundation and FAUSA, was distilled into a six-page report. In the year 2005 FAWCO clubs had collectively donated $1,700,000, plus time, food and goods, to their host communities and developing countries. The money, goods and services went to some of the neediest women and children in the global society for health, education, the environment and peace.

Valerie Garforth, FAUSA, Environment Committee Chair, reported the continuing promotion of tree planting and the Clean up the World initiatives; US Liaison Lucy Laederich, AAWE Paris, spoke of the continuing work in Washington with the other overseas organizations on the census, on streamlining voting, and on creating a caucus focusing on overseas Americans. The delegates voted on a statement urging United States support of Article 36 of the Vienna Convention on the right of a non-citizen in a host country to have access to Consular information and notification.

FAWCO Foundation President Mary Rose Stauder (AAW Ireland) introduced a Charity Is the New Black fundraising theme. Development grant and scholarship winners were announced; $24,000 went to grants and $23,000 went to education awards. The Foundation announced a Friendship Cruise to support its Kids Help charity and Hole-in-the-Wall Camps. Past Foundation award winner MaLinda Hill, AWC Cologne, spoke of using her award money to fund research on the Kugeria Women Water Project of Murinduko, which received the 2005 grant to build a water tank. This is a first in which award money went to finance research for a grant.

Four new clubs joined FAWCO: AW Potluck Club, Kristiansand, Norway; AC of Hertfordshire, England; AWC Auckland, New Zealand; and AWC Montevideo, Uruguay.

XXXVIII BIENNIAL CONFERENCE LYON 2007

Conference Chairs Eric Way and Becky Raynaud welcomed the delegates from 42 clubs as well as special guest Angie Bryan, the US Consul to Auvergne, Bourgogne and Rhone-Alpes, to Light the Way in Lyon. The Presidents' Day Gala, held at the Lyon City Hall, commemorated the 20th Anniversary of the host club, AC Lyon.

The FAWCO Foundation, celebrating its 40th anniversary by Painting the Town Rouge, has distributed nearly one million dollars since its founding in 1967. The FAWCO Bylaws were amended to accurately reflect the status of The Foundation as an independent corporation with its own elected officers, documents and bylaws, and as the charitable arm of FAWCO. A second bylaw change made the FAWCO Secretary an elected office.

The Resolutions and Recommendations for 2007-2009 were approved: supporting Americans living, working and retiring abroad; working toward greater human rights, particularly for women and children; and promoting mutual respect, understanding and international goodwill between the United States and other countries.

The Aging Today Chair introduced the new Grandma 2 Grandma Bibi Jann Children's Care Trust Project to provide housing for AIDS orphans and their grandmothers, or bibis. Environmental Chair Valarie Garforth, AWC Brussels/FAUSA, announced FAWCO's participation in the UN Billion Tree Campaign and urged FAWCO to strive to plant at least one tree per member. The Educational Support Committee reported that its two-page document, detailing how students with special needs can be educated, had been translated into 24 languages, thanks to FAWCO members.

US Liaison Lucy Laederich announced the formation of the much-anticipated Americans Abroad Caucus, co-sponsored by Congressman Carolyn Mahoney (D-NY) and Congressman Joe Wilson (R-SC). Speakers at the Lyon Conference included the Executive Director of the Overseas Vote Foundation, Susan Dzieduszycka-Suinat, who works with FAWCO and others to increase overseas voter participation in US elections and is developing online voter registration software. Professor Peter Luthy of BioVision and Director of the Nyabondo and Malindi Malaria projects provided delegates with a vivid picture of life in the villages, and the impact that FAWCO's contribution has made to combat malaria. Jean-Baptiste Richardier, Director and Executive Manager of the Conference charity, Handicap International, gave a powerful presentation on the devastation caused by landmines and cluster bombs. Workshops included Estate Planning for Overseas Americans; Oral Fluency Strategies in Learning a Foreign Language; Language and Bilingualism in Ageing; Addiction Intervention with Arno Winkelmann; FAWCO in a Flat World presented by Conference sponsor Jian Global Services; and Global Warming with Peter Garforth.

FAUSA had 178 members as of September 2006. It introduced a new membership category for guest members who were not American-born nor members of a FAWCO club while abroad.

President Emily van Eerten reported on attending the opening ceremony for the FAWCO House in Beruwala Village, Sri Lanka. This home for widows and orphans of the 2004 Asian tsunami is now operational and providing many additional training services to its residents. The Emergency Relief Fund for Hurricane Katrina, approximately $20,000, went to Dillard University, whose campus had been devastated, to build a new reading/study room in Kearny Hall, to be dedicated in April 2007.

A special FAWCO Fellowship Award was given to Phyllis Michaux, AAWE Paris, in recognition of her efforts over the years to change and improve the US Citizenship laws on voting from aboard and dual-national requirements. The Circle of Honor was presented to Mary Mag; as FAWCO president, Mary was integral in establishing The Foundation as a not-for-profit corporation in the State of Missouri, and served as its first president. FAWCO Counselor Pamela Dahlgren, AW Surrey/FAUSA, also received the Circle of Honor for her extensive service to FAWCO over the years, serving on many boards and chairing the London Conference. The Carolyn Curtis Brown Spirit Award was presented to Ann De Simoni, AIWC Genoa, in recognition of her outstanding leadership in such projects as the Dream Cruise, Kids Help and Conference Buddies.

INTERIM CONFERENCE SEOUL 2008

The first FAWCO Conference in Asia was held at the Millennium Hilton Hotel in Seoul, Korea, March 5-9. President Celeste Brown greeted the 183 attendees and guests with the theme, Dynamic Korea: Global Impact. Conference Chair Valerie Briggs and her committee introduced Seoul and its environs with a pre-Conference tour of the area.

The Wonderful World of FAWCO opened with a new PR film, "FAWCO Making a Difference," and a festive Parade of Nations featured Korean club members, in costume, representing all of the FAWCO clubs.

The delegates from 42 member clubs attended a varied program of general sessions, parallel sessions for club presidents and FAWCO Reps, and separate sessions for non-officer attendees. BOOST (Be Open, Organized and Successful Today) sessions were on Attracting and Keeping Club Members and Public Speaking with Poise and Confidence. Workshops included Play the Game to Win: Women and Negotiations; We all Learn Differently – Some a Bit More than Others; and Operation Underground Railroad: Changing One Life at a Time.

The goals and activities of the Vision for the Future Task Force that had been initiated at the end of the 2007 Lyon Conference were presented. Under the leadership of FAWCO Secretary Linda Rishel, AWG Paris, the work was organized into three distinct areas: 1) input was solicited from individual FAWCO members on the current state of FAWCO; 2) member clubs were surveyed to learn what demographic changes and issues were affecting them; and 3) Vision for the Future Task Force Open Forums were scheduled during the Conference to discuss the tentative findings.

Other initiatives included:

- 1) A new, easy-to-navigate FAWCO website created by Web Manager Alice Grevet.
- 2) Bulletins by committee chairs, NGO Directors, and US Liaisons more directly available to all FAWCO members.
- 3) A new FAWCO Power Point presentation to promote FAWCO to member clubs and their communities.
- 4) The use of Skype for board conference calls and other contacts.
- 5) Two FAWCO Greatness workshops given by Eric Way, AW Lyon, to investigate ways for FAWCO to harness and direct its strength.

Second Vice President Terri Knudsen presented the new FAWCO Rep Appreciation Award to three reps: Janet Byrne, AW Surrey, Region 1; Barbara Edwards, AWA Vienna, Region 5; and Tricia Reynolds, AWC Naples, Region 8. She announced that Regional Meetings were held in Regions 1, 2, 4 and 5. New club reports were from AWC Auckland, AWC Korea, AWC Philippines, AWC Shanghai and AWA Bristol.

NGO Director Pam Perraud announced that FAWCO was donating $3000 to the Eleanor Roosevelt Workshop for Girls in Val Kill, New York, in honor of the 69th Anniversary of Mrs. Roosevelt's vital role in creating the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Several daughters of FAWCO members attended the workshop in summer 2008. NGO directors actively supported the anniversary activities in Geneva, and FAWCO sponsored a special website for the event.

FAWCO Foundation President Arline Coward thanked the member clubs for being the lifeline of The Foundation, supporting Philanthropy, People and Promises. The Foundation Board revised its structure to have six members. Elsie Bose, AWG Paris, Development Grants Chair, introduced a new grant, Ending HIV/AIDS DG, and announced the eight winning grants. Dolores Cuellar, AWC Bogotá, Education Awards Chair, announced the seven award winners. Lee Sorensen, Foundation Counselor, gave a tribute to Mary Mag Hesse, FAWCO and FAWCO Foundation President, and presented the Mary Walker Mag Hesse Award for Asian Studies.

“North Koreans in Crisis: Causes, Dimensions and Responses” was the subject of a panel discussion led by Stephen Bradner, Tim Peters and Andrei Landkov, MD. They discussed the human rights violations facing North Koreans and North Korean refugees.

Cynthia Niggli, AWC Zurich, was awarded the Caroline Curtis Brown Spirit Award in recognition of her efforts for The Foundation. My-Linh Kunst presented her book, Beyond Borders: Portraits of American Women from Around the World, featuring FAWCO women; their portraits were displayed throughout the Conference. Reports and photographs were uploaded to the FAWCO website so that those at home were able to follow Conference news and activities.

The Gala was combined with the FAWCO Foundation evening and its live and silent auctions; $29,000 was raised. The theme of Kapchi Katsbida (Let’s Go Together) was an apt finale.

XXXIX BIENNIAL CONFERENCE VILNIUS 2009

The 39th Biennial Conference was held March 18-22 at the Reval Hotel Lietuva in Vilnius, Lithuania. Without a local host club, Conference Co-Chairs Angelika McLarren, AWC Berlin, and Sharon Lochocki, AWC Hamburg, organized this first-ever Conference in New Europe with the theme Open Doors to New Horizons, reflecting the eastern expansion of the European Union.

A secondary theme of Reduce Reuse Recycle addressed the environmental impact of Conferences. Significant attempts were made to minimize the FAWCO footprint – less paper used, club mailboxes eliminated, and a Conference Manual reduced in size. Reports and photographs were posted on the FAWCO website as they took place, allowing members at home to follow the activities.

Thirty-nine member clubs were represented. The guest speakers were: Dr. Audra Sipaviciene, International Organization of Migration (IOM) in Vilnius, on Sex Trafficking; Dr. Hans R. Herren, Millennium Institute, on Food Security in a Changing World; and Mrs. Kazmira Danute Prunskiene, the first Prime Minister of Lithuania, who spoke on Women in Leadership Positions.

Boost sessions (Be Open, Organized and Successful Today) included How to Fundraise; The 3 P’s – Increasing PR and Profits from your Club Publications; and Good to Great. Workshops were The Fight for Liberty in Lithuania; Being a Woman in a Flat and Shrinking World; and Insurance Options for Living Overseas.

The final report of the Vision for the Future Task Force was received in May 2008; many of the recommendations were adopted. FAWCO would continue to be identified as FAWCO, but a descriptive tagline would be added; The Foundation president is serving as a non-voting special presidential appointee to the FAWCO Board; a Philanthropic Strategy and Focus Committee developed a more streamlined approach; and a legal committee was formed to investigate the legal aspects of several longstanding issues regarding the organizational structure and process of FAWCO. The president emphasized four focus areas for FAWCO: 1) member club support; 2) U.S. issues; 3) global issues; 4) philanthropy.

Vice President Terri Knudsen announced that five regional meetings had been held, and Mary Kent, AWO Moscow, gave a club report. Rep awards were presented to Linda Laval, AWC Languedoc-Roussillon, Anne Cameron, AWC Zurich, and Grace Christovasilis, AWO Greece. "Clubs in Motion" highlighted club activities devoted to the importance of exercise and health.

Third Vice President Marline Holmes and FAWCO Foundation President Elsie Bose announced the new Target Program, the brainchild of the Philanthropic Strategy and Focus Committee that worked throughout the summer of 2009. It is a focused philanthropic approach that will integrate education and awareness of a chosen topic along with project fundraising over a four-year period. It will highlight a specific issue to be solved while supporting the UN Millennium goals.

FAUSA President Jane Indreland summarized the 2008 membership statistics; the Annual Meeting will be in Durango, Colorado. The Foundation awards and development grants were announced. Donations were solicited for the Emergency Relief Fund for the Chinese earthquake.

The Circle of Honor was awarded to Arline Coward, Barcelona Women's Network, and Alice Grevet, AAWE Paris. The FAWCO Fellowship Award was presented to Ray Cheng, CEO of SoZo Group, for his support and sponsorship.

The Foundation evening was A Wild Night in Vilnius; $18,700 was raised. The Gala evening was Enchanted Moments: guests were asked to ReStyle, ReCycle, and ReUse their evening attire, evoking a romantic atmosphere of times past.

INTERIM CONFERENCE BOSTON 2010

FAWCO Alumnae USA (FAUSA) hosted the Interim Conference at the Boston Park Plaza Hotel with the theme Make History. Forty-one clubs participated, three of them new - Munich International Women's Club, American Women's Club of Lagos, and the American Women's Association of Dubai - bringing the total FAWCO membership to 75 clubs.

President Kathleen Simon reaffirmed the importance of cooperation among women and the impact that it can have on our host communities. On the eve of FAWCO'S 80th Anniversary, she stated, "Now more than ever, we are expected, and we owe it to ourselves, to give back to our communities and the world; through FAWCO we have the chance to make a difference, today, tomorrow, and for the next 80 years."

Interaction between clubs has been at regional meetings and newly created club workshops in which individuals share experience and expertise. Communication has been through e-newsletters and e-bulletins from Headquarters, Task Forces and liaisons. A board goal was to increase website effectiveness. A Technical Advisory Group (TAG) was appointed to evaluate the website and set guidelines for optimizing its use and structure within overall communication channels. Catherine Conner, AWC Hamburg, spearheaded TAG. Its recommendations influenced the new website inaugurated in September 2009; a new advertising rate card; migration to an alternative web hosting company; and a better-priced web-hosting offer.

After a survey for a new tagline, and the vote was: FAWCO...serving overseas Americans and the international community since 1931.

As a founding member of the Alliance for Military and Overseas Voting Rights (AMOVR), FAWCO contributed to the ground-breaking Military and Overseas Voter Empowerment Act (MOVE) that set new standards for Federal elections; it again partnered with Overseas Vote Foundation, reaffirming FAWCO'S leadership in the field of overseas voting. The NGO team expanded to include UN NGO Advocates and a UN NGO Youth Coordinator; the NGO Director worked directly with the task force chairs on global issues. FAWCO honored Eleanor Roosevelt through its sponsorship of the Girl's Leadership Workshop in Val Kill, New York.

Proposals for the FAWCO Target Program, initiated in Vilnius as a four-year fundraising effort to bring a critical global issue to the attention of the extended FAWCO community, came from individuals and clubs. The three finalists were: Empowering Women through Education (Anne Cameron-Rutschmann for AWC Zurich); Maternal Health (Regina Weber and Sylvia Behrman, co-chairs of the Health Issues Task Force); Water (Anne van Oorschot and Kris Smith, co-chairs of the Environment Task Force, and on the behalf of AIWC Casablanca and the Barcelona Women's Network). WATER was chosen as the Target Issue where FAWCO can truly make a difference.

In response to the earthquake in Haiti, the Board activated the FAWCO Emergency Relief Fund and sent $21,000 to Oxfam America.

The FAWCO Foundation awarded $36,000 to the Education Award and Development Grant recipients. Melissa Mash, AW Surrey, was elected president of The Foundation. A proportion of the silent auction proceeds was given to the Conference host charity, Americans Overseas Domestic Violence Crisis Center.

Conference delegates received tips on volunteer leadership, online social networking, and international banking within the economic crisis. An agenda change merged the Face2Face session with the FAWCO Fair where attendees could chat with committee chairs, the US Liaison, the NGO Director, the FAWCO Board, The Foundation and sponsors. Presidents and reps discussed common club-level issues such as membership, volunteer management, use of technology and how to promote FAWCO within their clubs. Two sessions featured the Executive Director of the Pew Research Center who discussed recent demographic trends in America, and the Grameen Foundation, introducing micro financing as a way of empowering women.

The gala dinner at the Algonquin Club featured famed New England poets and authors as a parting gesture to the Boston theme, Make History.

TARGETING WOMEN 2011-2015

These years became more focused, less general. Fundraising selected three-year Target Projects devoted to precise goals. FAWCO adopted WOMEN as the cultural theme of its global outreach: education, human rights, health and environment.

FAWCO, The Foundation and FAUSA began to work in tandem, tailoring their programs to these same women's issues.

FAWCO became more prominent as an NGO in the UN, sponsoring its first high-level panel in Geneva and appointing its first Youth Rep to the UN.

Disaster Relief was sent to Japan for an earthquake, the Philippines for a typhoon, New York for Hurricane Sandy and Liberia for Ebola.

XXXX BIENNIAL CONFERENCE MARRAKECH 2011

FAWCO's 80th Anniversary and 40th Biennial Conference were celebrated in Marrakech, Morocco. Co Chairs Cynthia Smith-Ayed of AIWC Casablanca and Yira Carrasco-Kemlin of AIWA Rabat enlisted a local agency that, for a fee of 10%, facilitated the event planning. The 124 full participants and 47 guests represented 43 FAWCO clubs and FAUSA.

FAWCO President Kathleen Simon, AWC Bern, announced that Elaine Senigallia, FAWCO President 1981-83, remembered FAWCO with a generous bequest that will be used to establish the FAWCO Endowment for Tomorrow Fund as well as to continue core programs. A new edition of The FAWCO Red History Book, 1931-2011, edited by Nancy Thornley, Rome/FAUSA, and Georgia Regnault, AWC The Hague, and a scarf designed by Sunny Eades, North American Connection, were presented to each Conference participant.

A new alignment of the FAWCO and The FAWCO Foundation Board elections, to be held in the same year, was approved and will begin in 2013. The first Target Program was successfully launched with WATER as the issue and "Wells for Clean Water in Cambodia" as the selected project. Anne van Oorschot, AWC The Hague, Target Water Program Chair, and Yolanda Henry, FAUSA, Project Coordinator, outlined the efforts being made to date. Seven new clubs joined FAWCO between 2009 and 2011: Dubai, Qatar, Munich, Lagos, Augsburg, Marrakesh and St. John's Wood (London). Bouchra Bouamama, President of AIWA Marrakesh, was invited to introduce her club. The 2011 Resolutions & Recommendations, as presented by Acting Committee Co-Chairs Susanne Hirschberg, AWC Dusseldorf, and Monica Jubayli, AWA Dubai, were approved. Elinor Badanes, AW of Surrey, paid tribute to Pam Dahlgren by presenting a touching memoir based on their long-term friendship and Pam's many years of working for FAWCO.

The Conference was held at the Meridien N'Fis Hotel and the theme was Celebrate Tradition, Embrace Diversity. In promoting this theme, in addition to workshops, events were held each afternoon to introduce aspects of Moroccan life and culture such as carpet buying and cooking.

The Anniversary Dinner was held at the Sofitel Hotel and President Simon invited each participant to put “your stamp where you can in your part of the world. Be an agent of change...and a leader like FAWCO leaders these 80 years.” VIP guests included the Ambassador of the United States of America to the Kingdom of Morocco, the Honorable Samuel Kaplan and his wife Sylvia, as well as Sergio Mendez, Director of Marketing for FAWCO's Presenting Sponsor, Clements International.

The Circle of Honor Award was presented to Pam Perraud as NGO Director; Caroline Curtis Brown Spirit Awards were given to Angelika McLarren, AWC Berlin, Frauke Rademacher-Heidemann, AWC Hamburg, Dolores Cuellar, AWC Bogotá, and Sunny Eades, North American Connection; and the Fellowship Award to Clements International.

To celebrate the anniversary, Rick Chizmadia, FAUSA, made a slideshow of photographs from 1931 to the present. A song, “Close to Home”, was specially composed by Robin Goldsby and Amy Antin of AIWC Cologne. The Gala Evening was held at the Palais Suleiman.

The keynote speaker was Stephanie Willman Bordat, Global Rights' Maghreb Regional Director, who spoke about women's rights in Morocco. “The Sustainable Management of Water” was the subject addressed by speaker Dr. Houria Tazi-Sadeq.

Workshops were: Teamwork: Personal Lessons about Partnering in Life, Politics and Diplomacy by Ambassador and Mrs. Kaplan; No Excuses – Why Running is a Metaphor for Life, by Gwen Dellar, AIWC Casablanca, a marathon runner who completed the Marathon des Sables, a six-day-243-km endurance race across the Sahara; FAWCO and US Issues led by Lucy Laederich, AAWE Paris, U.S. Liaison, and Mary Stewart Burgher, AWC Denmark, Voting from Overseas Committee Chair; Follow the Leader Within: Be the Best of Whoever You Are – Wherever You Are, by Elizabeth Abbot, AWA Rome; Americans Overseas Domestic Violence Crisis Center (AODVCC) Presentation by Paula Lucas, Founder of AODVCC; Investing for Fun and Profit: Understanding the Importance of Financial Planning by Sheila Ohlund, AWC Zurich.

The conference fee was 550 Euros with an early-bird special rate of 500 Euros by January 31. In addition, the first 80 registrants enjoyed a discount, a subsidy from the FAWCO Board in celebration of the 80th anniversary. The Conference's sole sponsor was Clements International for $3500. Unfortunately, lack of other sponsorship, refunds for late cancellations, a reduction of the conference fee without a corresponding reduction of expenses, and unplanned wine expenditures, resulted in a conference deficit of Euros 1,908. This prompted revisions in the Conference Planning Manual to avoid future similar occurrences.

The FAWCO Foundation evening was a success, raising $20,148. My-Linh Kunst was elected President for 2011-2013. In closing, President Simon quoted Winston Churchill: “You make a living by what you get, but you make a life by what you give.”

INTERIM CONFERENCE DUBLIN 2012

AWC Dublin hosted FAWCO’s Interim Conference with 120 delegates and 50 guests from 41 clubs representing every region except Region 11 - Asia, Australia and New Zealand.

The keynote speaker was Michael D. Higgins, President of Ireland, who gave a 25-minute speech applauding FAWCO’s work and volunteerism. Dignitaries included Jimmy Deenihan, Minister of Arts, Heritage and Gaeltacht Affairs; Lady Mayoress of Dublin, Sinead Ahern; and Chargé d’Affaires from the United States Embassy, John Hennessey-Niland.

Other speakers were Dr. Mary Henry, a former Irish Senator, who spoke eloquently about women’s health; Dr. Pat Wallace, Director of the National Museum of Ireland for 28 years and a world expert on Viking archeology, gave an entertaining speech at dinner; a panel discussion entitled “Stop the Violence: Ireland!”, moderated by journalist Susan McKay, focused on the challenges and successes in Ireland in addressing the issue of Violence Against Women; Sarah Franklyn, Co-Founder and Director of Natural Capital Services, talked about comprehensive solutions to water sustainability by tying water to trees and agriculture.

Peggy Rigaud, AWC Languedoc-Roussillon, was invited to share the history of FAWCO and the United Nations to mark the 15th anniversary of FAWCO’s status as an accredited NGO with ECOSOC status. Peggy was awarded FAWCO’s highest distinction, the Circle of Honor Award, for her efforts in spearheading and completing this laborious accreditation process.

President My-Linh Kunst reported that FAWCO reached three important milestones this past year: 1) the Target Program reached its $80,000 fundraising goal just halfway into the fundraising cycle; 2) FAWCO co-sponsored its first United Nations high level panel in Geneva during the 18th session of the Human Rights Council (the special panel on Women and the Right to Water at the UN Headquarters in Geneva was organized by Lois Herman, FAWCO member from AWA Rome and head of WUNRN, Women’s UN Report Network); 3) FAWCO held its first meeting in Region 9 (Middle East), hosted by AWA Dubai, and attended by the five FAWCO clubs from the Region: AW Amman, AWC Lebanon, AWA Qatar, AW of the Eastern Province and AWA Dubai.

Second Vice-President Elizabeth Abbot reported that the new Best Practices Library is live online with input from 20 clubs and contributing 25 best practices in the areas of club management, membership, communications, external relations and activities.

The Emergency Relief Fund was activated for Japan's earthquake victims in the Tohoku area. With contributions from AIWC Cologne, AWC Brussels and a handful of individual donors, $5400 was raised for Second Harvest Japan, the first food bank in Japan. The modest contribution prompted the Board to implement several changes: the Emergency Relief Fund was renamed the Disaster Relief Fund, alleviating the "emergency" requirement and allowing for support of recovery as well as rebuilding projects. New criteria were specified for those requesting that a disaster be funded:

- 1) The request must have the full support of the club's board.
- 2) The requesting club will be asked to contribute to the Fund.
- 3) The requesting club will be asked to research and suggest at least one disaster recipient.
- 4) The requesting club (or one of its members) should have a personal connection with the disaster or the recipient organization.

To expedite the structure for dues changes, the bylaws were amended as follows: "The amount of the annual dues to be paid by member clubs may be reviewed and changed by a vote at the Biennial Conference or Interim Conference. All dues shall be payable by last the day of February."

Over the Rainbow was the theme of The FAWCO Foundation dinner and auction that raised over $30,000; a portion of this money was donated to the local Conference charity, Children's Sunshine Home. A new FAWCO Foundation Board was elected with Michele Hendrikse Du Bois as president. FAWCO Nominating Committee Chair, Kathleen Simon of Bern, Foundation Nominating Committee Chair, Melissa Mash of Surrey, and Resolutions & Recommendations Committee Chair, Laurie Richardson of Vienna, were appointed.

Bern, Switzerland was announced as the site for the following Biennial Conference.

XXXX1 BIENNIAL CONFERENCE BERN 2013

The 41st Biennial Conference was held in Bern, Switzerland, with over 100 full participants and 30 day participants from 39 clubs and representing every region except Region 10 – South America and the Caribbean. The theme was In a Timely Fashion – Women Tradition Innovation.

On International Women's Day, keynote speaker Betty E. King, United States Ambassador to the United Nations and other international organizations in Geneva, spoke candidly and eloquently about the progress of women in diplomacy and other the global issues concerning women. She then joined FAWCO "on the bridge" to show solidarity in promoting peace instead of violence against women in war zones. Megan Beyer, wife of the United States Ambassador to Switzerland, Don Beyer, a journalist and regular contributor to Le Matin in Geneva, also spoke passionately about gender equality and women in corporate leadership. Ambassador and Mrs. Beyer then hosted FAWCO delegates for an Appéro in their home.

President My-Linh Kunst finished her first two-year term and was elected for a second term with a new board (Mary Mag, 1965-1969, was the only other president to serve two terms).

The President reported these key accomplishments for the year:

- 1) The Water Target Program raised $165,000 for Tabitha Cambodia and a few other water organizations with 78% of the clubs participating.
- 2) The Target Evaluation Committee, chaired by 3rd VP Monica Jubayli, recommended that the Target Program cycle be reduced to three years, that the FAWCO and Foundation Boards jointly select the issue, that there be more communication during the Project selection process, and that The Foundation owns the fundraising aspect of Target.
- 3) At the request of the FAWCO UN/NGO team and as part of FAWCO's effort to participate more closely and more effectively with the UN, the FAWCO Board voted to articulate FAWCO's UN focus, naming WOMEN as the central theme of its global outreach. Within that umbrella four specific areas were identified: women's and girls' education, women's rights, women's health, and women and their environment.
- 4) FAWCO joined the UN Women National Committee of the United States. Pam Perraud, NGO Director, participated in regular Board calls with local chapters in the US and would be participating in regular UN Women activities going forward.

FAWCO partnered for the third time with Overseas Vote Foundation and offered its members a totally secure, dedicated voter registration and ballot request website. FAWCO US Liaison Lucy Laederich met with a number of senior officials of the IRS and Treasury Department along with representatives of AARO, ACA, Democrats Abroad and Republicans Abroad, to discuss the hardships imposed on overseas Americans because of new FATCA reporting requirements. As a result of much activity and interest in the FATCA topic, FAWCO has been featured in an unprecedented eight articles in the latter half of 2012 in such noted press as The New York Times, The Chicago Tribune and Le Figaro.

At the request of AWC Antwerp, the FAWCO Board initiated the Disaster Relief Fund for Hurricane Sandy. With contributions from AWC Antwerp, AIWC Cologne, AWA Rome and some individuals, $3000 was raised for services, materials, and emergency assistance to residents across the hard-hit Lower East Side/Chinatown neighborhoods.

The online Best Practices library had 34 clubs that contributed over fifty best practices across the many areas of club development.

Club Presidents' Coordinator Leslie Collingridge hosted the first ever Webinar for club presidents; the subject was Conflict Management.

The FAWCO Foundation's gala party, Knights in White Satin, raised over $40,000. A portion of this money was donated to the local conference charity, Women's Hope International. As 2012 was a special one-year term for The Foundation Board in order to align its elections with those of the FAWCO Board, it chose to use 2012 primarily as a planning year. Procedures and processes were reviewed and a survey was conducted to learn what the FAWCO member clubs wanted from The FAWCO Foundation.

Brussels was announced as the site for the 2014 Interim Conference.

INTERIM CONFERENCE BRUSSELS 2014

The 41st Interim Conference was in Brussels, Belgium, with over 110 full delegates from 43 clubs representing every region except Region 11, Asia and Australia. The theme was A World of Possibilities.

Workshops were led by FAWCO Counselor Celeste Brown, The Hague, on How to Make a Presentation with Confidence and Impact, and by Danielle Diamond, Luxembourg, on Is Social Media Using You? FAWCO Parliamentarian Susanne Hirschberg, Düsseldorf, moderated a session on Sharing Best Practices.

The FAWCO Foundation raised over $40,000 at its traditional gala dinner and auction, Around the World in 80 Bids; FAWCO members dressed in traditional costumes of their host countries. A portion of the money raised was donated to the local conference charity, STOP THE TRAFFIK.

President My-Linh Kunst reported on the highlights of the year:

1) The second Target program, launched in Bern, was “Human Rights for Women.” Program Chair Johanna Dishongh, The Hague, organized sessions at regional meetings that focused on women's rights as human rights, specifically in the areas of political empowerment and participation, economic empowerment, peace and security, and ending violence against women. Project selection was completed with the final vote from member clubs. Johanna announced The Target Project, Free The Girls, and Marie-Bénédicte, AWC Zurich, launched a beautiful and exciting Target fundraising campaign, “Backing Women?”

2) Following up on the FAWCO Youth Program launched in Bern to promote cultural understanding and to raise awareness of global issues in young people, Youth Program Chair Barbara Bühling, AWC Dusseldorf, reported on an extremely successful inaugural Cultural Volunteers Program in Dubai with seven youth participants. FAWCO'S first UN Youth Rep is Gavin Higbie, son of Erica Higbie, FAUSA/ NY UN Rep.

3) The Disaster Relief Fund for the Philippines collected $8500 in contributions from individuals and AWA Angola, AWC Basel, AIWC Cologne, AWG Languedoc-Roussillon, Munich IWC, ANCOR Rotterdam, AWA Vienna and AWC Zurich. With the exception of Cologne's donation where the split was designated, the rest of the donations were divided in half in support of two small local organizations, Tao Philippines, proposed by AIWC Cologne, and IDEA, proposed by AWC Philippines.

After five years as UN NGO Director, Pam Perraud, AAWE Paris/FAUSA, stepped down and her successor, Sara von Moos, AWC Bern, was appointed.

In 2013, with new Membership Co-Chair Elizabeth Abbot, FAWCO was proactive in reaching out to previous member clubs and potential clubs. Two clubs did not renew for 2014, AWC Auckland and AWC Thailand, bringing the total number of clubs to 64.

Three special task forces completed their work with participation from FAWCO, FAUSA, The Foundation and member clubs: Target Water Program Evaluation Task Force chaired by Monica Jubayli, AWA Dubai; Target Project Selection Committee, moderated by 3rd VP Laurie Richardson, AWA Vienna; and Interim Meetings Task Force, moderated by Patti Meek, AWC Dublin. They presented findings and recommendations to the FAWCO Board that brought about changes to the Target Program and the redesign of the Interim Meeting.

FAWCO Foundation President Michele Hendrikse Du Bois reported that, based on the 2012 survey of FAWCO member clubs, the board voted to focus on four core programs: Development Grants, Education Awards, NEEED Scholarship Program and the Target Project. In addition, it agreed to align its programs with FAWCO's newly adopted resolution to "improve the lives of women and girls worldwide, especially in the areas of human rights, health, education and environment." In an effort to simplify the application process it removed the requirement for mailed applications and, as of 2014, started accepting only emailed applications.

Rome, Italy, was announced as the site for the FAWCO Biennial Conference 2015, hosted by AWA Rome.

XXXX11 BIENNIAL CONFERENCE ROME 2015

The 42nd Biennial Conference was held in Rome, Italy, with 115 full delegates from 42 clubs, representing all regions except for Region 10. All seven clubs of Region 5 were in attendance, and all seven founding clubs were present. AWC Mumbai attended the Conference for the first time. The theme was The Eternal Woman – Equality, Protection, Empowerment.

An impressive roster of speakers included four keynote speakers: Michele Bond, US Assistant Secretary of State for Consular Affairs; Linda Douglass, AWA Rome's Honorary President and wife of the US Ambassador to Italy; Dr. Moez Doraid from UN Women; and Cindy McCain, humanitarian and wife of Senator John McCain. There were also presentations from the Target Project, Free the Girls, and workshops on leadership, communication and social media led by various FAWCO/FAUSA members.

The Caroline Curtis Brown Spirit Award was presented (in absentia) to Sara von Moos, AWC Bern, in recognition of her work as UN Liaison. Sara repatriated and stepped down from the post after just one year, but in that short time she markedly raised FAWCO's engagement and visibility in the UN NGO community.

President My-Linh Kunst reported on the year's highlights:

1) FAWCO embraced its newly-sharpened focus by changing the tagline from "Serving Overseas Americans and the International community since 1931" to "Empowering Women Worldwide since 1931."

2) The FAWCO Archives found a permanent home at the Expatriate Archive Centre (EAC) in The Hague.

3) FAWCO gained prominence with the NGO community of the United Nations. It was on the board of the NGO Committee on the Status of Women in Geneva and Vienna, and chaired Advocacy for the Working Group on Girls in New York (a coalition of 80 NGOs working on Girls' issues). A new brochure focused on FAWCO's UN work "to improve the lives of women and girls in the areas of education, environment, health and human rights." Sixteen FAWCO women attended the Beijing +20 Review NGO Forum in Geneva and seventeen FAWCO and FAUSA members attended the UN 59th Commission on the Status of Women (March 2015).

The FAWCO Youth Program had a successful year:

1) Fourteen Cultural Volunteers attended a fascinating week in Shanghai, hosted by AWC Shanghai.

2) Vali Mitsakis, AWO Greece, was appointed as the second FAWCO UN Youth Rep at the UN.

3) FAWCO Youth Ambassador Julia Goldsby traveled the world, hosted by FAWCO member clubs.

The FAWCO Disaster Relief Fund was activated at the request of AIWC Cologne. It raised $1578 plus direct donations of €2250 from AIWC Cologne and AWC Zurich for medica mondiale Liberia (mmL) in support of families and survivors of Ebola in Liberia.

FAWCO's second Target Program, "Human Rights for Women," (2013-2016), spent the year on education and awareness through presentations at Regional and Club meetings, publication of monthly Target Bulletins, and activity on the Target Facebook Group. At the time of the Conference, about $74,000 had been raised for Free The Girls.

FAWCO Foundation President Michele Hendrikse Du Bois reported that after offering an Information Technology (IT) Award for Young Women in 2013, an IT award for FAWCO members was added. The Board approved a complete update of The Foundation's governing documents.

A new FAWCO Board for 2015-2017 was elected: President Monica Jubayli, AWC Lebanon; 1st Vice President for Communications Sallie Chaballier, AAWE Paris; 2nd Vice President for Member Clubs Leslie Collingridge, Chilterns AWC; 3rd Vice President for Committees Johanna Dishongh, AWC The Hague; Treasurer Patricia Aeby, AWC Bern; and Secretary Lesleigh Rizzi, AIWC Genoa. Patti Meek, AWC Dublin, was elected President of the Foundation.

The concept of an Interim Meeting between Biennial Conferences was re-introduced in order to reduce costs and efforts. The Sites Committee's name was changed to Event Planning Committee and its responsibilities expanded to include the planning and execution of Interims. President-elect Monica Jubayli appointed Angelika McLarren and My-Linh Kunst, both AWC Berlin, as Co-Chairs of the Frankfurt Interim Meeting for 2016.
